Germans Interpret Hitler Speech As Plea For Peace

LIMITATION OF ARMS IS HIGH POINT

Offers Absolute Fulfillment of Locarno Pact to Great Powers

(Copyright, 1935, by United Press)

BERLIN, May 22.—(UP)—Germans believe that Adolf Hitler has laid before European statesmen a workable plan for solution of Europe's problems.

They expressed profound conviction today that in addressing the Reichstag last night the Nazi Reichsfuehrer made the greatest speech of his career and, in fact, the strongest plea for peace by any European statesman since the World war.

He offered Europe:

Limitation of arms to a point on which the great powers might agree.

Absolute fulfillment of the Locarno treaty which binds Germany, Belgium, France, Italy and Great Britain to attack any of the five signatory nations which attacks another.

An air defense treaty to supplement Locarno.

Non-Aggression

Participation in non-aggression pacts which would contain provisions to isolate any party that was against a participating nation.

Assurance that—assuming limitation of arms to be a separate matter—Germany intends no treaty denunciation by direct action.

He demanded, in return:

Absolute equality for Germany as regards armaments and its place in the family of European nations.

The Germany shall join in drafting the program for any future pacification or disarmament conference.

That German nations in territories taken from Germany after the World war shall be treated fairly.

That the League of Nations shall cease to be the enforcing agent for the Versailles treaty.

Two Hour Speech

All these were but a few points in a speech which lasted for two hours and 15 minutes and left Hitler exhausted and hoarse.

His speech implied plainly that Germany will respect not only the frontiers of France but the 50-kilometer demilitarized zone on the

BREA MAN ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF COUNTY SERA COMMITTEE

Gold Courtesy Card Issued By Raymond Cato Seized By Judge Morrison, Man Jailed

By GEORGE E. HART

I WONDER how E. Raymond Cato, chief of the California Highway Patrol reconciles the practice of giving his special friends unlimited license to violate the traffic laws and imperil the motoring public," queried Justice Kenneth E. Morrison this morning as the heretofore legendary existence of gold courtesy cards, issued to his special friends by Cato, and supposedly placing such friends above all traffic law, stood as a proved fact.

There are such cards. Justice Kenneth E. Morrison, of Santa Ana, has one of them. But he didn't get it from Cato. He got it from a friend of Cato, James Arnold, collector for Baron Long, the Los Angeles sporting character, owner of the Los Angeles Biltmore and the Agua Caliente (Mexico) hotels.

And, while it is understood to be all that a state motor cop's job is worth to arrest a holder of a gold card, no matter what he does, the charm of Chief Cato's magic signature didn't work worth a cent with Judge Morrison, who sentenced Arnold to serve five days in the county jail for speeding 60 miles per hour.

Arnold, it seems, had carelessly left his gold-plated courtesy card at home when he was stopped by a highway patrolman near San Juan Capistrano May 11, which may or may not explain why he was arrested.

That was his first mistake. His second error was made when he brought the card with him into Justice Morrison's court. Judge Morrison does not work for Cato. He kept the card and meted out the sentence.

It was the second time within a few days that Arnold had been arrested for speeding, the gold card being absent each time. On the first occasion he appeared before Justice John Landell, charged with speeding 64 miles per hour. Therefore, when he got the second speeding ticket, in the same township, he hesitated at facing the same judge so soon. So he asked transfer of the case to the county seat court, a privilege granted by the motor vehicle law. That brought him before Justice Morrison, late yesterday.

Arnold, who is 33, resides at 1433 North Avenue 49, Los Angeles. His duties, he explained, require that he leave Los Angeles each Saturday noon, bound for Agua Caliente. He was on his way there when arrested. He is scheduled to report at the county court on May 24.

W. J. TWAY IS NAMED HEAD WORKSGROUP

First Steps to Reorganize County Set-up Taken at Meet Tuesday

REORGANIZATION of the Orange county SERA yesterday afternoon resulted in the naming of W. J. Tway, Santa Ana, as head of the works division and the election of W. W. Hay, of Brea, as chairman of the Orange County SERA committee.

Action taken by the SERA citizen's committee yesterday afternoon was the first step in preparing to reorganize SERA here to conform to the new national works program which will be launched shortly.

Tway, former head of the placement bureau, now moves up into a position second only to that of Director Terrence H. Halloran. He will be in charge of the professional, technical and women workers department, headed by Fred P. Jayne; the engineering and construction department, headed by Dan Mulhern, and the placement department, Cecil Wilson, former chief aid to Tway, has been tentatively selected to replace Tway.

Helen Cox remains in charge of the social department and Harry G. Wetherell continues as assistant state auditor in charge of the financial department of Orange county SERA.

Tway was named to the important position after a thorough investigation was made by members of the SERA committee, which had objected to Tway's advancement before because an administrative project which promoted Tway had not been passed through their hands before going to state ERA for approval. Tway was recommended for the position by Director Halloran and high ERA officials of the state.

The investigation made by the

L. A. MAN KILLED IN FREAK AUTO ACCIDENT HERE

ALBERT DICKENSON Pulis, 69, of Los Angeles, died at the Orange county hospital this morning at 4:30 from a fractured skull, received at 11:30 last night when he was catapulted to the pavement from a car driven by his son, Scott K. Pulis, 30, also of Los Angeles.

His death marks the twenty-third traffic fatality of the year in Orange county, one more than on this date last year.

The two were returning from a fishing trip to Mexico in a roadster when the accident occurred at corner of Laguna avenue and D streets, Tustin, according to Chief of Police John Stanton of Tustin, who with Highway Patrolmen Vernon Barnhill and Lloyd Groover investigated the accident.

Scott Pulis, the son, was driving, according to officers, and failed to make the turn onto D street, striking the curb on the west side of D street, swerving sharply across the street to the east curb, and thence into an orange grove owned by the Tustin estate.

The car did not overturn and the driver was unhurt, but as the machine ricocheted crazily across the street, Pulis senior was catapulted over the left door, and out onto the pavement, fracturing his skull. He was taken to the county hospital and died five hours later without regaining consciousness.

The body was taken to the Harrell and Brown mortuary pending an inquest and completion of funeral arrangements.

At the time of the accident, according to investigating officers, the Pulis car was being closely followed by another machine which was reported to have sideswiped about five miles below Tustin, the following machine being occupied by R. H. Preston and Neal Riddle, both of Pomona.

Besides his son, Pulis leaves his mother, Mrs. Sarah J. Pulis and a sister, Mrs. Emma Anderson, both of Los Angeles.

ROOSEVELT'S ARGUMENT REJECTED 25 MINUTES AFTER HE ENDS SPEECH

Measure Now Goes to Senate Where it Is Expected Upper House Will Sustain President's Act

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(UP)—The senate agreed today to meet at 10 a. m. tomorrow to start consideration of the bonus bill veto message and to limit debate to 30 minutes for each senator.

Democratic leaders said they believed the plan would make it possible for the senate to vote tomorrow afternoon.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(UP)—The house of representatives today overrode President Roosevelt's veto of the Patman bonus bill, rejecting his argument that the use of "printing press" money to discharge obligations to "special groups" led only toward disaster.

The vote was announced officially as 322 to override to 98. The vote a month ago on passage of the Patman bill was 318 to 90.

The issue now rests with the senate where new deal congressional leaders are confident a tight minority will sustain the President and stop the bill short of the required two thirds vote.

President Roosevelt was defeated in the house 25 minutes after completing his unprecedented personal appeal to a joint session of congress to repudiate the bonus bill.

Speaking before house and senate assembled in the hall of the representatives, Mr. Roosevelt argued that the Patman bonus plan was unsafe and unwarranted.

Mr. Roosevelt scarcely had reached home on his return from a rather chilly reception of his veto argument when a news ticker flashed the news to the White House.

BONUS BILL IS CONDEMNED AS "DISASTROUS"

WASHINGTON, May 22. (UP)—President Roosevelt today condemned the $2,200,000,000 Patman bonus bill as "disastrous," and vetoed the measure in an unprecedented personal appearance before a joint session of congress.

His message was a stern admonition against currency inflation.

He warned that "uncontrolled prices and destruction of the value of savings" would follow adoption of the printing press money plan of meeting the demands of special groups.

"I cannot be true to the office I hold if I do not weigh the claims of all in the scales of equity," Mr. Roosevelt said in an emphatic peroration.

"I am thinking of those who served their country . . . of those who increased crops, who worked in the mines . . . of those who died in the cause of America . . . of the widows and orphans of all of them . . . of five millions of Americans who with their families are today in dire need."

The complete text of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's message delivered to a joint session of house and senate, accompanying his veto of the bonus bill will be found on Page 5 of this issue of The Register.

Senate to Sustain

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson said he could not predict when the upper house vote would come. He will attempt to fix a definite time for it. Robinson was confident the senate would sustain Mr. Roosevelt.

Sen. Elmer Thomas, D., Okla., leader of the senate Patman group, said he would make every effort to prevent the senate from starting consideration of President Roosevelt's veto message before tomorrow.

He said that if administration leaders insisted on calling up the veto message today, he would force

COUNTY ROAD BILL WILL BE REVISED

SACRAMENTO, May 22.—(UP)—A bill providing for inclusion of approximately 1500 miles of county roads in the state highway system remained in the roads and highways committee today for further revision.

The committee last night delayed acting on the road program until senators had an opportunity to reduce their mileage requests to total 1090 miles. The present schedule calls for approximately 1500 miles of additional roads.

Consistent with their policy of opposing the administration unification of roads program, supervisors said they were opposed to adding any more county roads to the state system. W. A. Collins, Fresno, president of the State Supervisors' association, spoke in opposition to the program.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(UP)—The senate late today confirmed the nominations of Milburn L. Wilson, Montana, to be assistant secretary of agriculture, and Ben J. McKenney to be United States marshal for Arizona.

SERA ALLOTS JANE ADDAMS $260,000 FOR PASSES AWAY ORANGE COUNTY DURING NIGHT

AN ALLOTMENT of $260,000 for SERA expenditures for the current month in Orange county has been made by the state ERA, it was announced today by Terrence H. Halloran, director of SERA in this county.

This large sum is the amount set aside by the state office for expenditures during May. While the expenditures may run more or less than this amount, this was the figure set for expenses this month. The allocation is even larger than the amount expended here during April, when expenditures amounted to $223,345 were made. If the $260,000 is used up this month, it would be the largest monthly expenditure in the history of SERA in this county.

During the past week the cost

SEEK COMMUNIST IN LUMBER YARD FIRE

BRENTWOOD, Cal., May 22.—(UP)—County authorities today announced they would take 18-year-old Walter Drefs to Sacramento to attempt to identify a known communist as the man who offered him "$25 or more" to set fire to the Brentwood Lumber company yards.

The company's plant and adjoining yard, containing 1,000,000 feet of lumber were destroyed last night in an incendiary blaze. Drefs admitted setting the fire, police said. Loss was estimated at $30,000, exclusive of damage in two other fires which destroyed one and damaged another railroad refrigerator car.

Drefs, an Oakland youth formerly of Lodi, at first told officers he set the fires merely because he "likes to watch fires," Sheriff John Miller said.

ABSOLVE MACON CREW OF BLAME COTTON CROP IS 9,636,000 BALES

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(UP)—The 1934 cotton crop totaled 9,636,000 bales, the department of agriculture reported today.

The previous preliminary estimate was 9,731,000 bales. The 1933 crop amounted to 13,047,000 bales. The department reported 28,957,000 acres of cotton, yielding an average of 170.9 pounds per acre, were picked last year compared to 29,978,000 acres, yielding an average of 208.5 pounds, in 1933.

The area of cotton in cultivation on July 1, 1934, was 27,883,000 acres compared to 40,852,000 acres on July 1, 1933.

California's production was estimated at 250,000 bales, compared with 217,000 bales for 1934.

TRIAL MARRIAGE PERMIT IS SOUGHT AT LICENSE BUREAU

Imagine her amazement—When a cautious looking man approached Mrs. Ora Tetzlaff, clerk at the county marriage license bureau, and asked for a permit for a trial marriage.

The blank he got in return was not the permit. It was a blank stare.

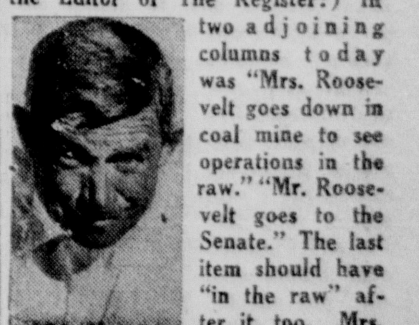

The cautious looking man carefully explained that there was a little matter of the bride-elect's uncertain temper, otherwise he'd ask for a regular license.

"You know," he pointed out, "I may not be able to get along with her. Thought I'd just try it out a while first, to make sure."

"Aside from the little detail that this state does not issue such permits, don't you think it might be nice to find out what your girl might think of the idea?" the clerk asked him sweetly,

LATE FLASHES

RENO, Nev., May 22.—(UP)—Nine suits asking a total of $900,000 damages for alleged ill effects from carbon monoxide gas poisoning were filed here today by former Boulder Dam workers against Six Companies, Inc.

Will Rogers Says:

SACRAMENTO, May 22.—(To the Editor of The Register:) In two adjoining columns today was "Mrs. Roosevelt goes down in coal mine to see operations in the raw." "Mr. Roosevelt goes to the Senate." The last item should have "in the raw" after it, too. Mrs. Roosevelt has got the best of these two family visits. With her sympathy for the less fortunate she is bound to come away with admiration and pity. The President is liable to come away with just pity. This is a cage he is going into when he thinks he can go in there with ninety-six assorted animals and tell 'em where and when to lay down. He is confusing himself with Daniel.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

COURTESY CARD IS SEIZED BY LOCAL JUSTICE

will next Monday to commence his sentence.

Rumors of the gold cards have been heard for nearly two years, but this was the first occasion when the common herd of this locality got a look at one, or even verified the rumors. Some rumors say they are granted by Cato as special favors, political or otherwise.

The front of the card seized by Justice Morrison bears the inscription "The California Highway Patrol extends courtesies to James Arnold," below which is a notice of the highway patrol insignia also is engraved on the card, the edges of which are decorated with scrollwork. The back of the card is inscribed as follows: "Presented by E. Raymond Cato 11-20-34."

Curiously enough, evidence of the existence of similar cards appeared in the May issue of the California Highway Patrol bulletin, published in Sacramento. On page 3 of the bulletin is a notice signed by Cato saying that all material in the publication is authentic and approved by him. On page 23 is another notice by Cato to all officers, advising them that J. L. Maddux, 1353 North Vine street, Los Angeles, had lost a wallet containing a gold courtesy card given him by me. Officers were instructed that if anyone presented the card, they should take it up and forward it to Sacramento.

Justice Morrison commented bluntly on the gold card issue. "I wonder," he remarked, "how Chief Cato reconciles such a practice of giving his special friends unlimited license to violate the traffic laws and imperil the motoring public, with the safety program his department has been promoting."

"I wonder also," he added, "who is paying the bill for these gold-plated cards. Is the California Highway Patrol paying it at the expense of the taxpayers? Is Chief Cato paying the bill himself and issuing the cards as a personal matter? If so, by what authority does he use the name of the California Highway Patrol? "In any event," he concluded, "I intend to see that Governor Merriam, Sen. N. T. Edwards, Speaker Ted Craig and Assemblyman James Utt, are apprised of the situation. It seems to me that this is a matter which the public officials should not disregard."

Savanna School Names Teachers

STANTON, May 22.—Following a meeting of the school board last evening at the school house, the teacher list for the new year at the Savanna school was announced as Mrs. Helen Schuerman, principal; Mrs. Dorothy Dennis, primary grades; and Miss Nina Duden, intermediate classes.

The principal of the Stanton Mexican school will be Mrs. Twila Reid. Grade appointments for the following teachers will be announced later. The group includes Mrs. Lois Stanley, Mrs. Lois Jewell, and Miss Betty Gould.

BONUS BILL IS CONDEMNED AS "DISASTROUS"

"It is of first importance that we yield not to sympathy which would extend to a single group or class . . . but that we should extend assistance to all."

"I believe the welfare of the nation, as well as of the future of the veterans, wholly justifies my disapproval of this measure."

In vigorous, measured language, Mr. Roosevelt told congress and the nation that the cash-payment plan was unwarranted.

House and senate assembled shortly after noon today over protests of a minority which challenged the president's constitutional right to deliver in person to both houses a message vetoing the action of their majorities.

No president had done so before him. Floor and galleries were jammed for this prime political event.

Mr. Roosevelt called the cash-payment plan in part straight gratuity. He warned that it would raise fundamental questions of finance.

The country cannot safely yield, he said, to all groups able to enforce upon congress their claims for special consideration.

"To do so," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "is to abandon the principle of government by and for the American people and to put in its place government by and for political coercion by minorities."

Behind the Patman bill, Mr. Roosevelt pointed to general pension legislation inevitably to be urged for all veterans regardless of need or age.

The nation's credit is safe today, the president assured congress. He conceded that mere addition of $2,200,000,000 to the national deficit would not in itself bankrupt the United States. But he warned that even the credit of America could not survive a policy which permitted government to yield to special groups.

Credit impaired

"Finally," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "I invite your attention to the fact that solely from the point of view of the good credit of the United States, the complete failure of the congress to provide additional taxes for an additional expenditure of this magnitude would in itself and by itself alone warrant disapproval of this measure."

Uncontrolled prices—inflation—and destruction of savings are inescapable, Mr. Roosevelt argued, if a printing press money precedent is established.

"The first person injured by skyrocketing prices," he continued, "is the man on fixed income. This bill favors the able bodied veteran at the expense of the disabled veteran."

"Every country that has attempted the form of meeting its obligations which is here provided has suffered disastrous consequences."

"In the majority of cases printing press money has not been retired through taxation. Because of increased costs, caused by inflated prices, new issue has followed new issue, ending in the ultimate wiping out of the currency of the afflicted country."

"In a few cases, like our own in the period of the Civil war, the printing of treasury notes to cover an emergency has fortunately not resulted in actual disaster and collapse but has nevertheless caused this nation untold troubles, economic and political, for a whole generation."

Mr. Roosevelt reiterated his pledge of care for disabled veterans. But for the able-bodied former soldier he insisted that there should be only equality of privilege with all other citizens—"no less and no more."

Eloquent of the importance with which Hitler's speech was regarded, the announcement just before the speech of the cabinet's passage of the defense law was almost ignored.

This law provides for one year of active military service by all men but "non Aryans" and high Roman Catholics. Males become liable to service in their 18th year. It provides that women as well as men shall serve the country in war time.

Hitler spoke at length on the abolition of offensive weapons, particularly heavy artillery and heavy tanks. He said he was willing to agree to elimination or even abolition of submarines—provided abolition was a part of "equal international regulation." He suggested outlawing of airplane bombing "outside the true zone of battle." This would forbid bombing of cities.

He took occasion to deny reports that Germany had, or wanted, 10,000 airplanes.

PROTEST MADE ON EXCLUSION OF OSTEOPATHS

Charges that the practice of not permitting osteopaths to practice in the Orange County hospital and that exclusion of osteopaths from the new Orange County Emergency Relief Medical plan is un-American and discriminatory were made by Committee-man S. W. McColloch, Fullerton, at a meeting of the Orange county SERA committee yesterday afternoon.

McColloch questioned the right of setting up the medical advisory committee which will be in charge of the program to name only medical men on the committee and to exclude osteopaths.

He said that osteopaths are taxpayers just the same as M. D.'s and that inasmuch as government money is being expended in the relief program, the osteopaths should be included in the program.

Under the present plan, McColloch said, a relief client in need of treatment would not be able to go to an osteopath if he wanted to, but would have to go to a medical man.

Members of the committee discussed the problem, and decided that it is not in the province of the local committee to settle the matter, but that it is a decision for the state ERA to make.

Virgil Dahl, assistant state ERA field agent, said that the state ruling is that only licensed medical men can be included in the program.

Plans for the organization of the medical advisory committee for representation from the SERA committee, the board of supervisors, the medical association, and the pharmacists association, and the dental association.

The new program is intended to supplement the present county medical facilities available to persons receiving relief because of unemployment, from SERA. It is intended, in general, to provide necessary medical care for persons who ordinarily would secure the services of a private physician if he were not unable to pay for such service.

A panel of physicians who want to participate in the program will be drawn up and patients will be referred in rotation to the nearest physician accepting the program. SERA would guarantee payment of the fees.

REAL ESTATE CHAIN OFFICE IS PLANNED

A new real estate chain, featuring co-operative display of standardized display cards with pictures of property, is about to add Santa Ana to its list of member cities, according to J. R. McVey of Inglewood, who was in Santa Ana this week interviewing local real estate brokers.

Already there are 39 cooperating offices, including Los Angeles and Long Beach and extending into Idaho and Oregon, McVey said, with only one broker in each city being selected as a part of the realty display system.

The picture cards depicting properties listed are displayed in cabinets, windows, etc., in any available location, McVey said, and aid in getting buyers and sellers together from widely scattered parts of the country. The Southern California organization is being directed by Sam Hill of Los Angeles, recently elected president of the combined Realty Boards of Los Angeles.

Word was received here today that E. Merle Hussong, former Santa Ana newspaperman, was removed to his home in Sacramento yesterday from a Sacramento hospital where he has been seriously ill for the past several weeks. Relatives here reported that his condition was improved considerably. He is suffering from the effects of an operation performed several years ago, it was said.

Gale H. Vinson, 29, and Myrtle C. Spencer, 24, both of Santa Ana, have filed application for a marriage license in Riverside.

SCHOOL HEAD ADVISES BOARD PRINT SHOP NOT COMPETING WITH COMMERCIAL PRINTERS

An investigation of the Fine Arts Press, Santa Ana High school and Junior college printing plant, and criticisms that have been made against it by the commercial printers, was ordered by the Santa Ana board of education last night, upon receipt of a protest letter from the printers, who demand that the school shop be restricted in its printing and publishing activities.

City Superintendent Frank Henderson, who was instructed to make the investigation, told the board last night that the school print shop does not engage in commercial printing and is not in competition with the commercial printers. Instructor T. E. Williams, he said, has been careful to watch and guard against students doing small printing jobs privately for their friends.

Henderson indicated lack of sympathy with the request of the commercial printers that the school printing instruction be restricted to mere instruction, and that the schools purchase their printing from the commercial printers.

The letter from the printers suggested that the schools could save money by doing that.

In their letter, they are not interested in having fancy books published just for the sake of seeing them in the libraries of foreign countries.

The letter had been filed earlier in the day by A. G. Flagg, of Santa Ana, president of the printers' organization; Gilbert P. Campbell and N. E. Mayhill.

was injured yesterday afternoon at 4:30 when knocked from his bicycle by an automobile.

The accident occurred when George, riding north on Glassel street with another youth, turned his bicycle into the path of a car driven by Charles W. Wynkoop, 51, of Whittier, according to reports of witnesses.

He was taken to an Orange hospital by Police Officer W. J. Winslow, where it was reported that his injuries, except for a badly lacerated left leg, were not serious.

CHAIN LETTER DEFENDANT IS OUT ON BAIL

Marion Ruth Smith, 20, 1217 North Geneva street, Glendale, one of the defendants in the "fool-proof" chain letter case arrested here Monday afternoon, was released from jail yesterday afternoon on a $5000 property bond signed by Frances Marie Dungan of Garden Grove and Claudia Worswick of Santa Ana.

Nat James, C. B. Brockett, Mrs. Louise Burghart and Mrs. Helen Buchanan, arrested in Monday's raid of the mushroom chain letter office at 605 North Main street, were still in jail today awaiting arraignment on a criminal conspiracy charge set for next Monday morning.

No other arrests had been made up to noon today, but M. E. Gordon, M. Clarke and George Hutchinson, alleged promoters of the "prosperity club" office here, were still being sought by police.

Many other cities followed Santa Ana's lead in stopping the chain letter racket, according to local officers, and word has come from Long Beach, Los Angeles, and many other cities of offices which were raided and closed after city and county officials at Santa Ana demonstrated that it could be done.

MEXICAN PLAYERS OF PADUA HILLS TO APPEAR HERE

was injured yesterday afternoon at 4:30 when knocked from his bicycle by an automobile.

The accident occurred when George, riding north on Glassel street with another youth, turned his bicycle into the path of a car driven by Charles W. Wynkoop, 51, of Whittier, according to reports of witnesses.

JURY CONVICTS MAN OF LIQUOR SALE TO MINOR

Carl Zirinsky, proprietor of a liquor store at 116 North Main street, was found guilty of selling a pint of whiskey to a minor by a jury which heard evidence in the second trial of the case in Police Judge J. "We find the defendant, Carl Zirinsky, guilty as charged," read the jury's verdict signed by Paul Andres as foreman. "We strongly recommend leniency."

Judge Mitchell set tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock as the time for pronouncement of judgment.

City Attorney Lew Hodge conducted the prosecution yesterday with Attorney Harry Westover acting as the defendant. Witnesses included Officers Prichard and Heard, Carl Kennedy and his mother, Mrs. Ila K. Hyler, Prescott Johnson, Zirinsky and Bill McLennan.

Members of the jury included Paul Andres, F. E. Philbrook, E. J. Naish, Chas. E. Morris, O. W. Reeves, E. C. Irwin, R. V. Cox, Mrs. L. M. Pearson, Peter Benthien, Mrs. R. H. Martin, Mrs. H. R. Cook and S. I. Taylor.

PRIZES TO BE AWARDED FOR FISH STORIES

An opportunity for Isaac Waltonians of Santa Ana and the county to indulge themselves in their favorite sport—swapping yarns—and in some cases to profit by it, is being afforded by the Montgomery Ward store here, which is opening a three day fish story contest tomorrow.

The contest, which will feature three prizes to go to the tellers of the tallest tales of the ones that got away, is being run in conjunction with the three day pole wrapping and deep-sea exhibition to be given by Sidney Boestler, one time skipper of the Zane Grey yachts.

Beginning tomorrow morning a demonstration of pole wrapping will be held in the store windows by Boestler, who is a recognized authority on fishing. Fishermen of the vicinity will be given an opportunity of having their poles wrapped at a nominal cost, it was announced.

Boestler, who has brought most of the paraphernalia of his deep sea fishing with him, will give demonstrations throughout Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the sports department of the store, demonstrating casting and landing. He will also show pictures of fishing in various parts of the world.

All story contest entries must be mailed to the store before Saturday night.

S. A. GIRL WINS FIRST AWARD IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

For the second consecutive year Miss Olive Eleanor Schweitzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Schweitzer of this city has won first place in the intermediate piano class in the annual Southern California Festival of Arts, competing in finals held yesterday afternoon at the Edison building in Los Angeles.

The 15-year-old Santa Ana girl was the youngest entrant in the intermediate class of the piano division, open to students from 12 to 16 years of age. She was unanimously acclaimed winner of first place over 55 participants in preliminaries, and 7 young people who entered the finals.

Miss Schweitzer expects to receive notice soon of a banquet to be held next Monday in Los Angeles, when winners in the various divisions will receive their prizes. What the award will be, has not yet been announced. Winning first place in the same division last year, the Santa Ana girl received a six months' scholarship, which she used by continuing her studies under Miss Leonora Tompkins, local pianist who has been her instructor for the past three and a half years.

Numbers played by Miss Schweitzer in the festival were a first movement from "Pathétique" Sonata in C Minor, (Beethoven); "Second Valse No. 14 in E Minor" (Chopin); "Rikiki-Tikiki-Tavi and the Snake" (Cyril Scott).

Although the festival was the second annual held under the Women's Community Service auxiliary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Miss Schweitzer has won first place in Los Angeles contests for the past three years, receiving her first award in 1933.

Tony is a pinto, three years old and was bought by Brush when he was a colt of four months. Since that time he has had two hours schooling every day of his life. Tony will retrieve any object mentioned by his master, teeter-totter, pick out girls from boys, count, roll out his bed, get his bedroom slippers and night cap and many other tricks. Brush has been offered a big sum for Tony by circus managers and side-shows, it is reported, but says the horse is not for sale.

Then there will be Betty, the coat, an animal from the anti-eater family. Betty comes from Central America and is owned by F. S. Stambaugh, of Fullerton. Betty and her pal, Denny, a dog, will occupy a stall together. Betty is a good climber, has sharp teeth, likes termites, vegetables, fruit and all descriptions are being entered, some pedigreed and some not. The three prize winners of the show last Saturday, the Great Dane, the Scottie and the Collie will also be on exhibition. Many prizes will be given at this show. A fine roster will also be shown.

The De Luxe Photo Service will have a booth showing beautiful pictures of dogs and pets of Orange county that they have taken.

Out of 20,000 carrier pigeons operating with the signal corps of the U. S. Army,

FIRST BREACH MADE IN ANTI-TENURE POLICY OF SCHOOL BOARD; 2 ELECTED

The first breach in the Santa Ana board of education's anti-tenure policy, which refuses to employ probationary teachers more than three years, because a fourth year would give them permanent rating, was made after a sharp debate last night, when two teachers who have completed their three years probation period were re-elected for next term.

The board split, three to two, in retaining Miss Hubertson Kueneman, elementary supervisor, and Miss Marie Osborn, of the Hoover school kindergarten, who were the only two teachers this year affected by the anti-tenure policy.

The anti-tenure policy, however, was not officially discarded, merely suspended in order to carry out the board's wishes to build up the quality of teaching in the schools, by keeping teachers of recognized ability instead of replacing them annually with untried teachers, it was explained.

At the same time, the board took steps to seek a plan as a substitute for the anti-tenure policy, which would permit it to continue the practice of retaining desirable teachers permanently, without encountering the evils of the tenure law, which the trustees contend prevents dismissal of unfit teachers.

Dr. Margarette Baker, R. R. Hays and Ridley Smith voted last night to re-elect the teachers. Chairman George Wells and M. B. Touel voted no, on a roll call requested by Touel.

Wells and Touel explained that they were not voting against the teachers but against tenure. The other three explained that they were voting for the teachers but not for tenure.

New Member Decides

Ridley Smith, new member of the board, decided the issue last night by coming partially to the support of Dr. Baker and Hays in their fight to discard the anti-tenure policy, which they viewed as detrimental to school interests. Smith did not want to definitely discard the tenure policy, but he disliked losing the services of two valuable teachers, so he suggested suspension of the tenure policy for the present. He then suggested a way around the difficulty by proposing that some plan be found for assuring the improvement of teaching quality and "counteracting" the effect of the tenure law.

His motion to instruct City Superintendent Frank Henderson to seek and prepare such a plan was unanimously carried. Henderson briefly outlined to the board a plan of granting salary increases to teachers improving their educational equipment by outside study, as one possible idea to pursue in seeking a suitable local plan.

During debate over the matter of re-employing the two teachers, Superintendent Henderson, who had urged their retention despite the anti-tenure policy, informed the board that John McCoy, journalism instructor at Santa Ana High school and Junior college, and boys' counselor at the high school, would immediately accept an offer to teach at Beverly Hills High school if the board reaffirmed its anti-tenure policy, which would mean McCoy's dismissal at the completion of his probationary period.

McCoy and Calvin Flint, newly elected dean of Santa Ana Junior college, both have received flattering offers from Beverly Hills for next term, as announced in The Register, Monday. The superintendent intimated last night that they would remain in Santa Ana even at the lower salaries, if assured of a chance to hold their positions here beyond the three-year period. Beverly Hills has no such anti-tenure policy.

Says Policy Failed

Henderson said that the anti-tenure policy, adopted three years ago by various school boards throughout the state as a strategic move to influence the California Teachers association to abandon its powerful tenure lobby at Sacramento and permit repeal of the tenure law, had not succeeded in its purpose. It was only preventing the school from building up its teaching staff, he said.

Wells and Touel insisted that if the policy was sound three years ago, when it was adopted, it is sound now. Dr. Baker remarked that she was not convinced that it was sound three years ago. "If we made a mistake then, we should correct it now," she said.

Wells also argued that abandonment of the policy now would not be fair to the probationary teachers who have been released under the policy during the last three years. But Dr. Baker and Hays contended that any wrong done the teachers in the past was not an excuse for continuing to wrong teachers and injure the schools.

Teachers Elected

Seven new teachers were elected by the board last night for next term, to fill vacancies on the teaching staff. They were:

Miss Josephine Ball, graduate of Santa Ana Junior college 1933, Pomona college 1931, and U. C. L. A. 1933; specifically prepared in music; a teacher at the past year's school in the past two years. She is a daughter of Harry Ball, Santa Ana realtor.

Miss Mary Colgan Nalle, graduate of Santa Ana Junior college 1933, Redlands University 1935; special preparation in music.

Miss Bonnie Kiser, graduate of Santa Ana Junior college 1932, Occidental college 1935; with special capacities in public speaking and dramatics.

Miss Sada Macaulay, graduate U. C. L. A. 1933; has been teaching two years in Irvine school; special secretarial capacity.

Miss Geraldine Williamson, formerly of Villa Park; graduate San Jose State Teachers college, 1935; special preparation in music and physical education.

Russell Sullivan, graduate Santa Ana Junior college 1932, Whittier college 1934; has done student coaching in Santa Ana elementary schools; highly recommended by Whittier; to be placed in Delhi school to teach sixth grade, shop and physical education.

Emmett Thompson, graduate Redlands university 1935; capacity in playground and shop; to be placed in Logan Mexican school to teach sixth grade.

LEDERER STARS IN REVOLUTIONARY WAR STORY AT STATE

Francis Lederer, talented new screen star, is teamed with Joan Bennett and aided by a strong cast including Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland in "The Pursuit of Happiness" which opens on a double feature program at Walker's State theater today.

The story is that of a Hessian soldier who deserted British forces during the Revolutionary war to join the colonists, intrigued by their guarantee of the right of every man to seek happiness and liberty.

The other feature is "Marie Galante," starring Ketti Gallian, European stage star who makes her screen debut in this film which tells the story of a French girl who was abducted on a ship manned by a crew of spies and her efforts to get back home. Others in the cast are Spencer Tracy, Helen Morgan, Ned Sparks and Arthur Byron.

"Club Continental" a musical novelty, completes the program. a request for a year's leave of absence to Mrs. Rowena Harrison, of spurgeon school.

W. W. Wieman, principal of Lathrop Evening High school and the board's supervisor of S.E.R.A. educational projects, was employed for the vacation months of July and August to supervise the high school swimming pool, which will be staffed by S.E.R.A. workers.

The board voted also to continue the S.E.R.A. educational projects during the summer, as well as certain evening classes, excepting a band project, decision on which was deferred to the next board meeting, June 4.

Mrs. Nellie M. Smith, former Fremont teacher who was transferred to Willard Junior High school when a group of older Mexican students were "promoted" to the latter school, was transferred permanently to Willard being granted a leave of absence from the elementary field.

WILL ASK BIDS ON REMOVAL OF ROCK AT HARBOR

Bids on the removal of ledge rock from the north side of Lido Isle will be prepared and advertised in the near future as the next step in the government program in improving Newport harbor, according to word received from Major H. H. Stickney, war department engineer of Los Angeles.

The "John McMillen", San Francisco Bridge company dredger, has virtually completed the work of removing ledge rock from around Balboa Island, Capt. C. E. Cruise, army engineer in charge of the harbor work stated today, and it is expected that this phase of the work will be completed in the next few days.

All ledge rock contracts are awarded separately from the contracts for removing bottom material. It is hoped that the work of bay dredging will be completed by the first of September, nearly three months ahead of the time originally estimated.

Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, May 22.—(UP)—Probable success in the senate but trouble in the assembly was foreseen as the legislature moved toward final action on tax plans recommended by the steering committee of 14 representatives both houses.

A majority of senators approved the 10-point tax program and other proposals made by the committee, and apparently the stage was set there for speedy adoption of the plans.

First, however, bills carrying out the committee's ideas would have to go through the lower house, where strong opposition was offered a state automobile tax and real estate transfer tax. Also a new question arose on exemption of food from the sales tax when the attorney general said this provision could not be limited to certain kinds of food but must include all if the measure is to be legal. Exemption of all food would take a third of the sales tax revenue and trim down the committee estimates.

Proponents of a gross receipts tax as a substitute for a many-point plan awaited crystallization of sentiment before pushing their proposal. They hoped the assembly would exhibit so much opposition to the committee's recommendations that the situation would be ripe for bringing the gross receipts fight to a showdown.

Senator Chris Jepsen, Atascadero, refused to go along with other members of the committee and would not sign the report on the ground he did not approve the auto tax and real estate transfer levy. He preferred a severance tax on natural resources, but the committee did not include this in the recommendations.

Other members held the attitude: "Well, there are parts of this program I don't like; I'm flatly opposed to one or more of the proposals. But this is a steering committee and we cannot expect to accomplish anything unless we forget our personal preferences and fight for the measures approved by a majority. Consequently, I shall support every one of these measures on the floor."

A majority of senators seemed to feel the same way, willing to make concessions in drawing up a tax program which would solve the state's financial problems for the next two years.

The legislature recorded itself flatly against what some members claimed were fascist trends when it turned proposals to establish a state police force, or even to extend full police powers to the state highway patrol.

Many legislative habits of the past have been dropped during this session. Previously, when a bill was tabled by committee, it was dead. This year, committee tabling means nothing. Dozens of bills have been drawn out of committee by the assembly.

Even defeat on the floor isn't final any more. Reconstructions have been given and bills passed two days after they were defeated or vice versa.

Another record was established when the legislature passed the usual adjournment period. Never before had a body of California lawmakers stayed in session beyond May 18, except in 1933 when the legislature necessitated by a special June 20 election.

Speaker Edward Craig pleaded with the lower house members to speed their work so adjournment could be had May 25. There was no possibility of this, leaders agreed, because more than one week would be required for consideration of the taxation, revenue, budget and unemployment measures.

Members were hopeful they could get away by June 1, but there was a possibility the session would extend beyond that time, due to a continued desire of members to argue lengthily on every controversial bill. And if they haven't an important measure to consider, they have managed to devote hours to discussing lobbying and other subjects of no importance to the people.

Adjournment June 1 would provide only two weeks for accomplishing the bulk of the work started March 4.

Many observers believed the legislature would approve the entire committee report, with some minor changes and after heated battles. In that event, there would be a special election during the summer on a bond issue for institutional improvements and to authorize issuance of tax anticipation warrants for the present deficit. The legislature probably would return early next year for a special session devoted to unemployment relief problems.

COUNTY SCHOOLS MUSIC GROUP IN SANTA ANA MEET

Re-election of officers and a very interesting illustrated address by Louis Danz of Anaheim featured the regular monthly meeting of the Orange County Public School Music association, elementary division, held Monday at the First Christian church in Santa Ana.

Speaking on the subject, "The Relation of Contemporary Music to Art," Danz used many illustrations to show the development of the artistic inclinations of people from the north and south, and showing how music depicted the composer's stock and blood.

Closing his address, the speaker played chords on the piano to show what is being done by a modern contemporary composer.

A male quartet consisting of John Peterson, Manville Saxton, Ray Elliott, and Orion Hebermeyer, directed by Mrs. Claud Harlow, favored with three selections, and Miss Edith Cornell led the group singing.

Officers of the organization, who have served since its inception, were re-elected as follows: President, Stanley Kutz of El Modena; vice president, Marie Hare of Alamitos; secretary-treasurer, Edith Holsinger of Katella.

Club Women Hear Landscape Artist

SAN CLEMENTE, May 22.—Sponsored by the Arts and Crafts section of the Woman's club, a meeting was held Tuesday afternoon in the social clubhouse at 2 o'clock.

George Sherman, landscape artist, spoke on the San Clemente project approved by the government. After Sherman's talk, the women worked on art and needle displays.

Sherman will deliver a series of educational addresses at meetings during the summer. The entire group will be asked to attend the lectures that will be sponsored by the Arts and Crafts group.

AUTO RECOVERED

An automobile reported stolen last night by Lena May Wilkey of 316 South Garnsey street was later recovered at South Parton and Myrtle streets, according to report on file at the police station today.

COMPLAINT ON RELIEF RATES BEFORE BOARD

First negotiations for settlement of complaints voiced by Workers clubs from Santa Ana and Costa Mesa that Mexicans have lower budgets on SERA than white persons, were started by members of the Orange County SERA committee yesterday afternoon.

After receiving petitions from the two clubs yesterday afternoon, members of the committee decided to send the complaints in to state ERA headquarters on the grounds that the budgets for families on relief are standardized by state and national officials, and not by the county SERA.

Delegates from the two Workers clubs appeared before the committee yesterday and asked that the budgets for Mexican families be raised to the same levels as for Americans, claiming that the average Mexican budget is about 10 per cent lower than the American.

A veiled threat was made by one delegate who said that if the Mexicans were not satisfied they would leave the Worker's clubs and "join other organizations" which he intimated would cause trouble. It was claimed that the Mexicans are getting a "raw deal" and that many of them do not have enough to eat.

Complaints on the fact that some Mexicans and others have been sent out on agricultural jobs to which they were unaccustomed and so were unable to earn enough to live on after being separated from relief, were made by the delegates.

Virgil Dahl, assistant to M. H. Lewis, state ERA field agent in charge of Orange county, explained that budgets are worked out on an individual basis and that standards of living for various races are set by the state. He pointed out that Mexicans as a rule live in cheaper houses, and because the relief program calls for payment of rents as well as other living expenses, the budgets for Mexicans naturally are somewhat lower.

Delegates from the clubs said it is true that agriculture in some instances is paying higher wages the year than last, but working conditions and the rising cost of living results in the worker securing less for his money than ever.

SERA separated agricultural workers from the relief program because farmers in the county claimed they had to have labor in the fields and that their crops were going to ruin.

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

By VERA RAMSEY

There have been many books written on the situation in Russia, Germany and Italy. Alexander Werth in "France in Ferment" gives us a revealing account of another European power.

Dramatically set forth in these pages are the issues and man and the crisis on which the fate of Europe hangs. Here in detail are the Shinsky scandals, the riots of February, the storming of Parliament, Domergue's rescue, the death of M. Prince—murder or suicide—corruption in the French press and other sensational accounts of present-day France.

This book contains the first complete and authoritative account of the grave events of last winter. February 6, 1934 was a day of awakening for the Fascists and a day of grave warning to French democracy. The author leads up to the story of last winter's violence by showing France's place in relation to Hitler, Mussolini and Britain and what she is doing in an effort to isolate Germany. The book, besides being an exciting inside story of a period of violence and terror, is a sound account of France's position and importance in the world today and the probable future toward which she is heading.

Alexander Werth, Paris correspondent for an English paper, is one of the shrewdest and most expert of England's foreign correspondents. He has lived in France for several years and knows personally most of the leading figures in French politics. He was among the vast crowd on the tragic night of February 6, 1934, and in the midst of the Communist riots a few days later. His book gives us a vivid, first-hand picture of France today from behind the scenes.

The most celebrated leper colony in the world is that on the island of Molokai in Hawaii. The leper settlement on the elevated grassy plain of Kalaupapa has in its history many stories of self-sacrifice and heroism. That of Father Damien is well known. The story told by L. V. Jacks in "Mother Marianne of Molokai" is no less inspiring.

In his work Father Damien soon realized that it was not sufficient for the leper settlement to be provided with skilled physicians and remedies. The need was great for experienced and devoted nurses, especially women. The call was made for the help of some member of the Catholic sisterhood. Mother Marianne was then Provincial Superior of St. Anthony's Convent of the Sisters of the Third Order of St. Francis in Syracuse, New York. She was then past forty-five years of age. To her it was not an adventure as would have appeared to more youthful minds. It was to her a sacred mission to which she dedicated her life.

What she and other workers have accomplished is very apparent. Where Father Damien saw only rocky crags and windy open spaces there are now well-ordered settlements. Hospitals now stand where there was once no pretence at scientific treatment and doctors study the reports sent out by investigators on the ground.

This biography is not only an interesting historical record of achievement, but also an inspiring picture of a woman. Deeply spiritual she had at the same time the forcefulness that is inherent in a people gifted with leadership.

Text Of President's Message On Soldier Bonus

WASHINGTON, May 22 (UP)—The text of President Roosevelt's veto message on the Patman bonus bill follows:

Mr. Speaker, members of the house of representatives.

Two days ago a number of gentlemen from the house of representatives called upon me and with complete propriety presented their reasons for asking me to approve the house of representatives bill providing for the immediate payment of adjusted service certificates. In the same spirit of courtesy I am returning this bill today to the house of representatives. As I told the gentlemen who waited upon me, I have never doubted the good faith lying behind the reasons which caused them and the majority of the congress to introduce this bill. In the same spirit I come before you dispassionately and in good faith to give you, as simply as I can, the reasons which compel me to give it my disapproval.

And I am glad that the senate by coming here in joint session gives me opportunity to give my reasons in person to the other house of the congress.

As to the right and the propriety of the president in addressing the congress in person, I am very certain that I have never in the past disagreed, with the senate or the house of representatives as to the constitutionality of the procedure. With your permission, I should like to continue from time to time to act as my own messenger.

Eighteen years ago the United States engaged in the World War. A nation of one hundred and twenty million people was united in the purpose of victory. The millions engaged in agriculture toiled to provide the raw materials and foodstuffs for our armies and for the nations with whom we were associated. Many other millions employed in industry labored to create the materials for the active conduct of the war on land and sea.

Sacrifice, Patriotism
Out of this past army consisting of the whole working population of the nation, four and three-quarters million men volunteered or were drafted into the armed forces of the United States. One-half of them remained within our American continental limits. The other half served overseas; and of these, one million four hundred thousand saw service in actual combat.

The people and the government of the United States have shown a proper and generous regard for the sacrifices and patriotism of all of the four and three-quarter million men who were in uniform no matter where they served.

At the outbreak of the war, the president and the congress sought and established an entirely new policy, however, in order to guide the granting of financial aid to soldiers and sailors. Remembering the unfortunate results that came from the lack of a veterans' policy after the civil war, they determined that a prudent and sound principle of insurance should supplant the uncertainties and unfairness of direct bounties. At the same time, their policy encompassed the most complete care for those who had suffered disabilities in service.

With respect to the grants made within the lines of this general policy, the president and the congress have fully recognized that those who served in uniform deserved certain benefits to which other citizens of the republic were not entitled, and in which they could not participate.

Provided Benefits
In line with these sound and fair principles, many benefits have been provided for veterans.

During the war itself provision was made for government allowances for the families and other dependents of enlisted men in service. Disability and death compensation was provided for casualties in line of duty.

The original provisions for these benefits have been subsequently changed and liberalized many times by the congress. Later generous presumptions for veterans who became ill after the termination of the war were written into the statute to help veterans in their claims for disability. As a result of this liberal legislation for disability and for death compensation, one million one hundred and forty thousand men and women have been benefited.

During the war the government started a system of voluntary insurance at peace-time rates for men and women in the service.

Generous provision has been made for hospitalization, vocational training and rehabilitation of veterans. You are familiar with this excellent care given to the sick and disabled.

In addition to these direct benefits, congress has given recognition to the interest and welfare of veterans in employment matters, through veteran preference in the United States civil service, in the selection of employees under the Public Works Administration, through the establishment of a veterans' employment unit in the Department of Labor, and through provisions favoring veterans in the selection of those employed in the Civilian Conservation Corps. Many states have likewise given special bonuses in cash and veterans' preferences in state and local public employment.

Veterans Benefitted
Furthermore unemployed veterans as a group have benefitted more largely than any other group from the expenditure of the great public works appropriation of three hundred million dollars made by the congress in 1933, and under which we are still operating. In like manner the new four billion dollar work relief act seeks to give employment to practically every veteran who is receiving relief.

We may measure the benefits extended from the fact that there has been expended up to the end of the last fiscal year more than $1,800,000,000 for these items in behalf of the veterans of the World War, not including sums spent for home or work relief. With our current annual expenditures of some $450,000,000 and the liquidation of outstanding obligations under term insurance and the payment of the service certificates, it seems safe to predict that by the year 1945 we will have expended $13,500,000,000. This is a sum equal to more than three-fourths of the entire cost of our participation in the World War, and ten years from now most of the veterans of that war will be barely past the half century mark.

Payments have been and are being made only to veterans of the World War and their dependents, and not to civilian workers who helped to win that war.

In the light of our established principles and policies let us consider the case of adjusted compensation. Soon after the close of the war a claim was made by several veterans' organizations that they should be paid some adjusted compensation for their time in uniform. After a complete and fair presentation of the whole subject, followed by full debate in the congress of the United States, a full settlement was reached in 1924.

Provided Adjustment
This settlement provided for adjustment in compensation during service by an additional allowance per day for actual service rendered. Because cash payment was not to be made immediately, this basis allowance was increased by 25 per cent and to this was added at compound interest for twenty years, the whole to be paid in 1945. The result of this computation was that an amount two and one-half times the original grant would be paid at maturity.

Taking the average case as an example, the government acknowledged a claim of $400 to be due. This $400, under the provisions of the settlement, with the addition of the 25 per cent for deferred payment and the compound interest from that time until 1945, would amount to the sum of $1,000 in 1945. The veteran was thereupon given a certificate containing an agreement by the government to pay him this $1,000 in 1945 or to pay it to his family if he died at any time before 1945. In effect, it was a paid-up endowment policy in the average case for $1,000 payable in 1945, or sooner in the event of death. Under the provisions of this settlement, the total obligation of $1,400,000,000 in 1924 produced a maturity or face value of $2,500,000,000 in 1945.

Since 1924, the only major change in the original settlement was the act of 1931 under which veterans were authorized to borrow up to fifty per cent of the face value of their certificates as of 1945. Three million veterans have already borrowed under this provision an amount which, with interest charges, totals $1,700,000,000.

The bill before me provides for the immediate payment of the 1945 value of the certificates. It means paying $1,600,000,000 more than the present value of the certificates. It requires an expenditure of more than $2,200,000,000 in cash for this purpose. It directs payment to the veterans of a much larger sum than was contemplated in the 1924 settlement. It is nothing less than a complete abandonment of that settlement. It is a new straight gratuity or bounty to the amount of $1,600,000,000. It destroys the insurance protection for the dependents of the veterans provided in the original plan. For the remaining period of ten years they will have lost this insurance.

Violates Principle
This proposal, I submit, violates the entire principle of veterans' benefits so carefully formulated at the time of the war and also the entire principle of the adjusted certificate settlement of 1924. What are the reasons presented in this bill for this fundamental change in policy? They are set forth with care in a number of "whereas" clauses at the beginning of the bill.

The first of these states as reasons for the cash payment of these certificates at this time: that it will increase the purchasing power of millions of the consuming public; that it will provide relief for many who are in need because of economic conditions; and that it will lighten the relief burden of cities, counties and states. The second states that payment will not create any additional debt. The third states that payment now will be an effective method of spending money to hasten recovery. These are the enacted reasons for the passage of this bill. Let me briefly analyze them.

First, the spending of this sum, it cannot be denied, would result in some expansion of retail trade. But it must be noted that retail trade has already expanded to a condition that compares favorably with conditions before the depression. However, to resort to the kind of financial practice provided in this bill would not improve the conditions necessary to expand those industries in which we have the greatest unemployment. The treasury notes issued under the terms of this bill we know from past experience would return quickly to the banks. We know, too, that the banks have at this moment more than ample credit with which to expand the activities of business and industry generally. The ultimate effect of this bill will not in the long run justify the expectations that have been raised by those who argue for it.

Provide Relief
The next reason in the first "whereas" clause is that present payment will provide relief for many who are in need because of economic conditions. The congress has just passed an act to provide work relief for such citizens. Some veterans are on the relief rolls, though relatively not nearly as many as is the case with non-veterans. Assume, however, that such a veteran served in the United States or overseas during the war; that he came through in fine physical shape as most of them did; that he received an honorable discharge; that he is today thirty-eight years old and in full possession of his faculties and health; that like several million other Americans he is receiving from his government relief and assistance in one of many forms—I hold that that able bodied citizen, because he wore a uniform and for no other reason, should be accorded no treatment different from that accorded to other citizens who did not wear a uniform during the World War.

The third reason given in the first "whereas" clause is that payment today would lighten the relief burden of municipalities. Why, I ask, should the congress lift that burden in respect only to those who wore the uniform? Is it not better to treat every able-bodied American alike and to carry out the great relief program adopted by this congress in a spirit of equality to all? This applies to every other unit of government throughout the nation.

The second "whereas" clause, which states that the payment of certificates will not create an additional debt, raises a fundamental question of sound finance. To meet a claim of one group by payment will raise similar demands for the payment of claims of other groups. It is easy to see the ultimate result of meeting recurring demands by the issuance of treasury notes. It invites an ultimate reckoning in uncontrollable prices and in the destruction of the value of savings, that will strike most cruelly those like the individuals and families faced with starvation. These greater and broader concerns of the American people have a prior claim for our consideration at this time. They have the right of way.

There is before this congress legislation providing old age benefits and a greater measure of security for all workers against the hazards of unemployment. We are also meeting the pressing necessities of those who are now unemployed and in need of immediate relief. In all of this every veteran has a share.

To argue for this bill as a relief measure is to indulge in the fallacy that the welfare of the country can be generally served by extending relief on some basis other than actual deserving need.

The core of the question is that a man who is sick or under some other special disability because he was a soldier should certainly be assisted as such. But if a man is suffering from economic need because of the depression, even of the afflicted country. In a few cases, like our own in the period of the Civil War, the printing of treasury notes to cover an emergency has fortunately not resulted in actual disaster and collapse but has nevertheless caused this nation untold troubles, economic and political, for a whole generation.

The statement in this same second "whereas" clause that payment will discharge and retire an acknowledged contract obligation of the government is, I regret to say, not in accordance with the fact. It wholly omits and disregards the fact that this contract obligation is due in 1945 and not today.

If I, as an individual, owe you, an individual member of the congress, one thousand dollars payable in 1945, it is not a correct statement for you to tell me that I owe you one thousand dollars today. As a matter of practical fact, if I put $750 into a government savings bond today and make that bond out in your name you will get one thousand dollars on the due date, ten years from now. My debt to you today, therefore, can not under the remotest possibility be considered more than $750.

Ill Considered
The final "whereas" clause, stating that spending the money is the most effective means of hastening recovery is so ill considered that little comment is necessary. Every authorization of expenditure by the seventy-third congress in its session of 1933 and 1934, and every appropriation by the seventy-fourth congress to date, for recovery purposes, has been predicated not on the mere spending of money to hasten recovery, but on the sounder principles of preventing the loss of homes and farms, of saving industries and of guarding bank deposits, and most important of all—of giving relief and jobs through public work to the individuals and families faced with starvation.

These greater and broader concerns of the American people have a prior claim for our consideration at this time. They have the right of way. There is before this congress legislation providing old age benefits and a greater measure of security for all workers against the hazards of unemployment. We are also meeting the pressing necessities of those who are now unemployed and in need of immediate relief. In all of this every veteran has a share.

To argue for this bill as a relief measure is to indulge in the fallacy that the welfare of the country can be generally served by extending relief on some basis other than actual deserving need.

The core of the question is that a man who is sick or under some other special disability because he was a soldier should certainly be assisted as such. But if a man is suffering from economic need because of the depression, even though he is a veteran, he must be placed on a par with all of the other victims of the depression. The veteran who is disabled owes his condition to the war. The healthy veteran who is unemployed owes his troubles to the depression. He presents a separate and different problem. Any attempt to mingle the two problems is to confuse our efforts.

Temporary Benefit
Even the veteran who is on relief will benefit only temporarily by this measure, because the payment of this sum to him will relieve him from the ordinary rules of relief if the ordinary rules of relief agencies are followed. For him this measure would give but it would also take away. In the end he would be the loser.

The veteran who suffers from this depression can best be aided by the rehabilitation of the country as a whole. His country with honor and gratitude returned him at the end of the war to the citizenry from which he came. He became once more a member of the great civilian population. His interest became identified with its fortunes and also with its misfortunes.

Some years ago it was well said by the distinguished Senator from Idaho that "The soldier of this country cannot be aided except as the country itself is re-habilitated. The soldier cannot come back except as the people as a whole come back. The soldier cannot prosper unless the people prosper. He has now gone back and intermingled and become a part of the citizenship of the country; he is wrapped up in its welfare or in its adversity. The handing out to him of a few dollars will not benefit him under such circumstances, whereas it will greatly injure the prospects of the country and the restoration of normal conditions."

It is generally conceded that the settlement by adjusted compensation certificates made in 1924 was fair and it was accepted as fair by the overwhelming majority of World War veterans themselves.

Prevent Profiteering
I have much sympathy for the argument that some who remained at home in civilian employ enjoyed special privilege and unwarranted remuneration. That is true—bitterly true—but a recurrence of that type of war profiteering can and must be prevented in any future war.

I invite the congress and the veterans with the great masses of the American population to join with me in progressive efforts to root a recurrence of such injustice out of American life. But we should not destroy privilege and create new privilege at the same time. Two wrongs do not make a right.

The Herculean task of the United States government today is to take care that its citizens have the necessities of life. We are seeking honestly and honorably to do this, irrespective of class or group. Rightly, we give preferential treatment to those men who were wounded, disabled, or who became ill as a result of war service. Rightly, we give care to those who subsequently have become ill. The others—and they represent the great majority—are today in the prime of life, are today in full bodily vigor. They are American citizens who should be accorded equal privileges and equal rights to enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—no less and no more.

It is important to make one more point. In accordance with the mandate of the congress, our budget has been set. The public has accepted it. On that basis this congress has made and is making its appropriations. That budget asked for appropriations in excess of receipts to the extent of four billions of dollars. The whole of that deficit was to be applied for work relief for the unemployed, definite purpose. Every unemployed veteran on the relief rolls was included in that proposed deficit—he will be taken care out of it.

Would Bankrupt
I cannot in honesty assert to you that to increase that deficit this year by two billion, two hundred million dollars will in itself bankrupt the United States. Today the credit of the United States is safe. But it cannot ultimately be safe if we engage in a policy of yielding to each and all of the groups that are able to enforce upon the congress claims for special consideration. To do so is to abandon the principle of government by and for the American people and to put in its place government by and for political coercion by minorities. We can afford all that we need; but we cannot afford all that we want.

I do not need to be a prophet to assert that if these certificates, due in 1945, are paid in full today, every candidate for election to the senate or to the house of representatives will in the near future be called upon in the name of patriotism to support general pension legislation for all veterans, regardless of need or age.

Finally, I invite your attention to the fact that solely from the point of view of the good credit of the United States, the complete failure of the congress to provide additional taxes for an additional expenditure of this magnitude would in itself and by itself alone warrant disapproval of this measure.

I well know the disappointment that the performance of my duty in this matter will occasion to many thousands of my fellow citizens. I well realize that some who favor this bill are moved by a true desire to benefit the veterans of the World War and to contribute to the welfare of the nation. These citizens will, however, realize that I bear an obligation as president and as commander-in-chief of the army and navy, which extends to all groups, to all citizens, to the present and to the future. I cannot be true to the office I hold if I do not weigh the claims of all in the scales of equity. I cannot swerve from this moral obligation.

Looks at Others
I am thinking of those who served their country in the army and in the navy during the period which convulsed the entire civilized world. I saw their service at first-hand at home and overseas. I am thinking of those millions of men and women who increased crops, who made munitions, who ran our railroads, who worked in the mines, who loaded our ships during the war period.

I am thinking of those who died in the cause of America here and abroad, in uniform and out; I am thinking of the widows and orphans of all of them; I am thinking of five millions of Americans who, with their families, are today in dire need, supported in whole or in part by federal, state and local governments who have decreed that they shall not starve. I am thinking not only of the past, not only of today, but of the years to come. In this future of ours it is of first importance that we yield not to the sympathy which we would extend to a single group or class by special legislation for that group or class, but that we should extend assistance to all groups and all classes who in an emergency need the helping hand of their government.

I believe the welfare of the nation, as well as the future welfare of the veterans, wholly justifies my disapproval of this measure. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I return, without my approval, house of representatives bill No. 3396, providing for the immediate payment to veterans of the 1945 face value of their adjusted service certificates.

MILK PRODUCERS OF COUNTY PLAN COOPERATIVE UNIT

Active plans to organize Orange county milk producers under the Federated Milk Producers was under way today with the appointment of a committee to contact dairymen for membership in the organization.

Details of the plan were discussed at a meeting this morning in Farm Bureau Hall. The object of the group is to organize cooperative organizations to effect sufficient control of the milk output to stabilize prices and to handle the surplus milk problem.

During the past five years many small groups of dairymen have been formed, and it is the plan of the new organization to act for a unified cooperative organization in selling milk, maintaining fair prices and to control the surplus.

The committee which will work on membership includes Ned Clinton, of Westminster, J. J. Denni, of Cypress, E. A. Wakeham, of Garden Grove, C. H. Christie, of Santa Ana, Ray Wilkins, of Santa Ana, William McOmie, of Artesia, and Frank Walker, of Midway City.

McOmie was named temporary chairman of the group, while H. C. Dargar, federal milk administrator, was elected secretary.

LEGISLATIVE MATTERS BEFORE COAST ASSOCIATION; TOLD FISH BILL PROSPECTS GOOD

Devoted almost entirely to the reading and discussion of reports dealing with legislative measures ranging from water conservation to fish reserve, the regular monthly dinner meeting of the Orange County Coast Association was held last night at the White House cafe in Laguna Beach.

In the absence of President Dan Mulhaddon, attending legislative hearings in Sacramento, Vice President Elmer Hughes, of Seal Beach, occupied the chair. Included among guests were John Crill, Roland Flaherty and S. W. Stanley, president, secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the Orange County Farm Board. Another prominent guest was James Irvine, owner of the extensive Irvine ranch property.

Willis Warner, of Huntington Beach, reported San Bernardino county interests are opposed to the Orange county water bill, now pending in the legislature, and may ask the governor to veto it. The speaker thought the right of eminent domain, contained in the bill, is the feature objected to by the San Bernardino interests. On motion of Roy W. Peacock, of Laguna Beach, the secretary was instructed to address a letter to Governor Merriam, asking that he sign the bill if referred to him for executive action.

Compromise Made
An interesting sidelight on lobby activities in Sacramento was presented in a report on hearings on Assembly bill 2417, establishing a fish preserve off the Orange county coast. The report was made by Mayor A. T. Smith, of San Clemente, and Secretary Harry Welch, of the association, both of whom, together with other Orange county representatives, attended the hearings. Welch made it plain that because of the strong opposition offered by the commercial fishing interests, a compromise, reducing the off shore reserve distance from three to two miles, may have to be accepted in order to insure a favorable vote on the bill. Welch added, however, that shortly before coming to the meeting last night, he had a telegram from President Mulhaddon, now in Sacramento, advising that prospects for the bill were good, and that the bill would be voted on today or tomorrow.

A. C. Peterson, of Laguna Beach, speaking for V. D. Johnson of Orange, made a brief report on the Orange county exhibit at San Diego. His report was supplemented by Howard L. Wood, secretary of Santa Ana chamber of commerce; Secretary Welch of the coast association; A. G. Sharpley, of Santa Ana, and others.

Ray Adkinson, county superintendent of schools, spoke on arrangements made for observing Orange County Educational Day on May 31 at the San Diego fair, for which special rates have been made by the Santa Fe railroad and the fair management.

NRS AGENT TO CONFER WITH RELIEF BOARD

Charles Fallert, head of the national reemployment service here, will be invited to meet with the Orange County SERA committee next Tuesday to present a report on the situation which exists now as a result of the release of agricultural workers from the SERA relief roles.

Several complaints which say that some of the workers released were not agricultural workers and have been having a hard time earning enough money to live on have reached the ears of the committee.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon the committee voted to favor a project for demolishing the Brea-Olinda elementary school. The project, which would employ 35 men, would cost $13,253, of which SERA would pay $10,927 for labor and the sponsor would pay $2,326. Demolition of the school is part of a building program.

It was announced that five social workers in the Orange county SERA, who are not yet selected, will go to Riverside next Monday to start an intensive period of training with the view of getting promotions. Representatives from Southern California counties will be at the meeting.

Routine business matters which the committee acted on included approval of direct relief warrants and requests from cooperatives for approval of requisitions from government funds set up for aiding the cooperatives.

ARRESTS TO BE MADE AS TOWEL THEFTS SOLVED

Widespread thefts of towels bearing the name of the Southern Service company, with some of them even sewed into beach bathrobes and jackets, became known today when it was reported that several arrests were imminent following an investigation by Santa Ana police officers.

The towels, supplied to many public and business institutions as a regular service, have the company name woven into the fabric and these towels are never sold, according to T. C. Wilson, local manager of the Southern Service company.

Nevertheless, many of the towels have disappeared, and drastic action is planned by the company to halt further appropriations of these towels to private uses.

The matter came to public attention today when 65 Southern Service towels, 5 towels from a Santa Monica club, two blankets and 2 sheets, alleged to be stolen property, were found by Detective Lieutenant C. W. Wolford in an apartment occupied by four Santa Ana youths. The stolen property, it was said, had been taken from the Y.M.C.A. building and included a towel taken from the private locker of James Workman, deputy sheriff.

Further investigation of towel thefts was being made by officers and it was expected arrests would be made within a few hours.

STEINMETZ RELATES STORY OF SLAYING

NEW YORK, May 22.—(UP)—Pale and nervously twisting his fingers, Joseph Leib Steinmetz, apostate son of a Jewish rabbi, emotionally related in general sessions court today the circumstances leading up to the slaying of his 17-year-old bride, Ruth, and a Roman Catholic priest with whom he found her.

Steinmetz was called to the stand by his counsel, Samuel Leibowitz, who indicated the former Presbyterian divinity student might be the only defense witness. The prosecution rested after reading a 25-page statement Steinmetz made a few hours after his arrest.

SPINNIN' THE OLD SPORTS WHEEL

Convinced that baseball has always put the pill just where seen its best days and is definitely on the down grade, The Examiner is preparing to open wide its sport columns to softball. Several times a week, the L. A. paper will run stories on the various leagues in Southern California. Matt Gallagher will be in charge. The Examiner sponsors its second big softball tournament early in September.

Way Middough will be master of ceremonies when the Orange County Athletic club reopens tomorrow night. A Long Beach haberdasher with a pleasing personality, Middough is considered the best fight announcer in Southern California with the possible exception of the veteran Dan Tobey. When Tobey retires, Middough will officiate at all the big matches uptown.

Willard Hershberger is fifth in International league batting averages. As Newark's No. 1 catcher, he is sticking .356. His fellow townsman, "Arky" Vaughan is leading the whole National league parade at .400. And Johnny Raitt smashes to smithereens the Southern California prep record in the 12-pound shot. Not bad, Freddie Fullerton, not bad at all.

The track and field outlook at U. C. L. A. is bright because it is so black. The following Negro athletes enroll at Westwood next fall: Mack Robinson of Muir Tech, state prep 100-yard champion in '34 who also broadjumps 24 feet; Joe Cunningham of Muir Tech, who won the low hurdles in the Southern Cal. meet Saturday in 24.3 and high-jumped 6'2". "Puff" Worrill of Muir Tech, last year's prep champ in the 220. Leonard Spencer, L. A. Jaycee half-mile with a record of 1:56. Wilbur Strode, late of Jefferson, who put the 16-pound shot 45'10" in the Santa Barbara invitational. John Callier, Pasadena Jaycee's sprint king. Tom Bradley of Poly, Southern prep 440 champ. And Jim McDaniels of Manual, a 6'3" jumper.

The only one the Bruins overlooked is 130-pound Tommy Nelson of Pasadena, who ran 9.8 last Saturday. Nelson is said to be headed for Michigan. . . because of Willys Ward. . .

The veteran catcher, "Eeny" Wilcox, offers some interesting reflections after a decade of night ball. He says Jimmy Coates has more "stuff" than any pitcher he ever handled. In the first few games he worked with Coates he seldom was able to catch the ball squarely in the pocket of the glove because the sphere kept taking crazy hops, Wilcox declared. It took him a month to get accustomed to them.

Glenn Stockbridge was a rock-against-pitcher, surmises "Eeny". Stockbridge had flawless control.

GARDEN GROVE HURLER TRADED BY ST. LOUIS

George Blaeholder of Garden Grove, Orange county's only major league pitcher, put on the uniform of the Philadelphia Athletics today, according to dispatches from St. Louis.

A member of the St. Louis Browns for the past eight years, Blaeholder was traded to Connie Mack's A's for two players—Pitcher Merritt (Sugar) Cain and Outfielder Ed Coleman.

Blaeholder was scheduled to pitch for the Athletics this afternoon.

The big right-hander departed from St. Louis in a shakeup which also resulted in the sale for $50,000 of Pitcher "Buck" Newsom formerly of Los Angeles, to Washington.

Blaeholder has not been effective this year although he had one victory to his credit against one defeat. Last year, "Big George" was one of the few major league moundmen to score 20 victories although he was with a chronic loser.

Blaeholder was picked up by the Browns of the Orange County Harbor league sandlots when he was pitching for Garden Grove, Victor Walker, Santa Ana sporting goods dealer, tipped off Jimmy Austin, then coach of the Browns, to Blaeholder's possibilities and Austin signed him. After three seasons in St. Louis farms at Terre Haute and Tulsa, Blaeholder remained with the Browns as a regular starting hurler.

For the past three years Blaeholder has made no secret of the fact that he would like to get away from the Browns. He was a violent holdout in the spring of 1932, reporting well after the American league season opened. Until now, the Browns steadfastly refused to sell or trade Blaeholder. They turned down an offer from the Yankees last year and another from Washington.

DANO DEFEATS DADO IN L. A. TITLE BOUT

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—(UP)—Pablo Dano, Filipino boxer, today was a step nearer the bantamweight championship of the world as a result of a victory over his countryman, Speedy Dado, in 10 rounds here last night.

Dano won championship recognition by defeating Dado and was accorded virtual recognition by the National Boxing association on condition he meets Sexto Escobar in a title bout in the near future. Referee Jack Kennedy gave Dano five rounds at the end of the eighth and awarded Dado one, calling the others even.

Each fighter weighed in at 117 1-2.

A MACKMAN NOW

After eight years in the livery of the lowly St. Louis Browns, Pitcher George Blaeholder, below, of Garden Grove, today joined Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. He was traded for Pitcher Cain and Outfielder Coleman.

Olive's young Jack Dugan, deprived of his trick deliveries by National league legislation, had enough left last night to give the Huntington Beach club its narrowest escape of the season.

The champions finally won, 2-1, but had to "crack down" all the way. Frank Sabella pitched his best game of the season to shade his youthful adversary, fanning 13.

Huntington Beach got both its runs in the second inning. Murray was safe when Manager Terry Griffith dropped his fly, Rodgers and Murray popped out but Merv Lower ran the count to three-and-two and then rammed a triple that scored Murray. Sabella's single then tallied Lower with what proved to be the winning run.

Olive loaded the bases with nobody down in the fourth. Harold Grifflin was safe on Kinley's error and Hill singled. Robbin popped to McKinley. Hatfield fouled to Murray in left field. Harnois scoring after the catch, Kidder fanned.

"Fuzzy" Errington had one bad inning at Anaheim last night, and it was bad enough to cost him a ball game, 5-2.

Anaheim bunched five of its six hits off the Westminster magic-line to make five runs in the third. Emmett Seacord beat out a bunt. "Jerky" Jertberg bounced a hit over Errington's head, Fred Wiseman doubled center, scoring Seacord. Comstock doubled past third, clearing Jertberg and Wiseman. Then Jean Arroues rifled a long home run over Hosack in right field, Comstock preceding him across the plate.

Westminster gathered 10 hits off "String" McDonnell but had the help of two errors to make its two runs in the sixth. With two away, Ed Daley singled and took an extra base on Comstock's poor throw to first. McClain singled over first and went all the way around when Arroues let the ball dribble through his legs. McDonnell fanned 11. Errington whiffed 11.

EASTMAN SHAKEN UP
SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—(UP)—Ben Eastman, former Stanford runner who holds several middle distance world's records, was under medical treatment today for injuries received in an automobile accident.

"Blazing Ben" suffered lacerations and contusions when his automobile and a truck driven by Domenico Gressi, according to police records, collided near Redwood City. Eastman's injuries are not serious.

STARS GANG ON STITCHFIELDS IN 6TH. WIN 13-2

All tracks were clear today for the National Night Ball league's first 1935 "natural"—Friday's collision at the Municipal Bowl between Santa Ana and Huntington Beach, undefeated leaders of the pennant race.

Both clubs made it three straight last night. The Stars made merry with Long Beach, a team which hasn't won a game in two years, rolling up a 13-2 victory with a second string pitcher on the ridge.

Huntington Beach had tougher sledding but eked out a 2-1 decision over Olive. In the other game of the evening, Anaheim sprung a major surprise by belting Westminster, 5-2.

Long Beach went into an early lead here, and some of the boys and girls had the jitters until the Stars finally found the range in the sixth and unceremoniously hammered their former teammate, Wilbur Stinchfield, out of the box. The Rear-Admirals scored twice in the first half of the game. Stevens and Manager Bill Cole had Jim Coates warming up in the bullpen right on through the sixth.

Stevens settled down after his wobbly start, got better as the contest progressed. He also was given dazzling support. Tom Donney robbed Mal Higgins of a home run with an amazing catch against the left field bank in the fourth, and Tommy Young, Francis Conrad, "Doc" Smith and Stevens himself came up with several defensive gems that helped keep the wolf from Stevens' door.

The contest was played under protest after the first inning when Manager Cole argued a ruling by Umpire Art Sandberg which gave Long Beach one of its runs. Konder opened with a hit, went to third on Edmundson's single. Konder scored on a wild pitch. Catcher "Bomo" Korral recovered the ball in time to make a play at the plate for Konder but Stevens let the ball go through him and Edmundson also tallied. Cole contended that National Night league rules allow only one base on overthrows at first, third and home.

Santa Ana tied the score in the second which Stinchfield started by walking Young and Korral. Stevens, trying to sacrifice, beat Young and Korral, the latter trotting home on Sackett's wild throw home.

Conrad's clever baserunning put the Stars ahead in the fourth, 3-2. He scored all the way from first on an infield tap by Denney and an error by Higgins. Denney bounced to Edmundson who left third base uncovered. Conrad, rounding second, kept right on toward home. Higgins muffed Edmundson's belated throw. Higgins' high throw to Wilcox helped him at the plate.

Stars Rally in Sixth
Santa Ana's supporters breathed easier after the sixth when six a seven run rally. Stevens opened with an infield blow. Conrad singled him to third. "Doc" Smith rifled a home run over Sackett in left field, scoring Stevens and Conrad. Denney, Daley and Ballard followed with hits before Prebie struck out. A wild pitch and passed ball scored Denney and Daley.

Then Tommy Young, who delivered four hits during the rout, hit a home run to left. Sackett tried to make a diving shoestring catch and let the ball get away from him. Downer, who relieved Stinchfield after Denney's hit, finally retired the side by fanning Stevens and Conrad, but ran into more grief in the eighth when Santa Ana made three more a walk, a Prebie, a hit by Young and errors by Lake and Higgins.

Deny Coast League On Verge Of Folding Up

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—(UP)—Directors of the Pacific Coast League have decided there is no possibility the league will "fold up" as a result of financial difficulties.

"Conditions throughout the league are better than they have been in years," was the official comment of the directors after a two and one-half hour meeting here yesterday.

The special meeting was called at the suggestion of Earl McNeely, president of the Sacramento club. McNeely informed the directors that his only intention in suggesting it was to arrange for promotional attractions to increase attendance in Sacramento. He denied the club was in financial straits, that he ever intended asking a reduction in admission prices and said that he did not entertain the idea of folding up.

The directors agreed to allow McNeely and all other owners to arrange special nights or days at reduced prices, but only with the consent of the visiting clubs. McNeely had in mind an "appreciation night" for Sacramento fans on which customers would be admitted for 25 cents.

It was explained that such concession does not mean a reduction in prices.

The directors pointed out that the clubs got off to a bad start financially this season due to stormy weather at the opening. Since the start, however, conditions have been encouraging, it was said.

Extra traveling expenses entailed by reverting to a split-week stand precipitated some discussion, but it was decided to continue the games on the present basis.

Following the meeting, McNeely announced his intention of reducing overhead by cutting his payroll. He said this would not be accomplished by salary reductions, but by dropping players outright.

Victor Devenecenzi, Oakland president, said Oakland receipts are up 50 per cent over last year for the corresponding number of games, and that good returns were received from series with Portland and Seattle, despite the clubs' low second division standings.

Only the formality of scoring victories over comparatively weak clubs from Brea-Olinda and Laguna Beach today kept Anaheim high school from claiming the softball championship of the Orange league.

The Colonists' 6-2 victory over Orange at Orange yesterday virtually decided the pennant race. Anaheim is undefeated this season. Orange was unbeaten until yesterday. Tustin, now tied for second place, battles Orange at Tustin Friday for the second spot.

A home run by Ted Neja in the first inning with Wally Fee and Villaseca aboard, gave Anaheim a three-run start which Orange never could overcome. The Colonists gathered single runs in the third, fifth and eighth.

Orange picked up markers in the fourth and sixth.

Tustin scored an easy victory over Garden Grove while Orange and Anaheim were having it out. Coach Bill Cole's Tillers assembled 17 runs while Garden Grove was being held runless by Ed Strivov. Jeff Richards hit safely five times.

Following workouts over the American Legion Drum corps' new dog track indications today were not only that the track is unusually fast but also that a number of Orange county bred dogs will give a good account of themselves when they go to the barrier for the first time Sunday afternoon.

Several owners raced their dogs yesterday before a crowd of some 100 persons. Running the 3-16 mile dash with two turns, at least ten local dogs turned in times under 19 seconds. Shortchange, owned by T. W. Robinson of Costa Mesa, ran alone and circled the 3-16 mile course in 18.6 seconds.

Judge Leo P. Quinn, Pasadena, who will act in the chief judge's position, announced today that a number of Los Angeles and Riverside county dogs would be here for the opening day, many good dogs being available due to the fact that tracks at Vancouver, in Florida and Arizona have just closed.

Local owners who will have entries Sunday include R. R. Burns, M. A. (Buck) Jones, and E. L. Rawdston, all of Huntington Beach. Al Warren and T. W. Robinson of Costa Mesa.

LITTLE WINS MOVES TO 4TH BRITISH ROUND

ST. ANNE'S-ON-LE-SEA, England, May 22.—(UP)—Led by the defending champion, Lawson Little of San Francisco, four United States golfers moved into the fourth round of the British Amateur golf tournament today. Two of the six who had survived the first two days of play were eliminated.

Advancing with Little were Carl A. Bullock-Webster, also of San Francisco, and Daniel Topping and Richard Chapman, both of Greenwich, Conn.

Little played a casual round in downing J. P. Zacharias of Liverpool, 4 and 3; Capt. Bullock-Webster topped Phil Farley of Toronto, 1 up in 19 holes; Topping won two matches, eliminating E. C. Millard of England, 1 up in the second round, and scoring a notable 4 and 3 triumph over the English Walker cupper, T. A. Bourn, in the third; Chapman beat W. H. Elkins of the Federated Malay Straits, 5 and 4.

Casualties were Harvey Shaffer and Tommy Taiter, both of New York. Shaffer topped Earl Watson, 1 up, in the second round but lost to G. L. Q. Henriques, 3 and 1, in the third. Taiter lost in the third to Eric Fiddian, another Walker cupper. The score was 2 and 1.

Little was in sterling form around the greens. He rarely left himself with long putts. On the first hole he pitched to within one foot of the cup. On the second, by actual measure, he was nine inches short, but Zacharias laid him a dead stymie from a sand trap. Little studied the lie and hopped the stymie for a par four.

Tanforan Horses Head for Border Stable Saturday

AGUA CALIENTE, May 22.—A mighty cavalcade comes down El Camino Real late this week—horses bound for the Agua Caliente race track, from Tanforan.

Judge George Schilling today announced there will be more than 250 horses heading south from Tanforan when the San Bruno course closes Saturday.

Many owners plan to ship by rail and others in palatial vans.

Schilling, who presides at both Tanforan and Caliente, says the cream of the northern crop of performers are down for Caliente stables and quite eager to return to the Mexican balliwick, with which most of them are familiar. Powerful Southern California contingents are included among them the Cooper, Marmet, Headley and Fagan stables.

Many Tanforan also come hefty reinforcement to the riding ranks. Tanforan's apprentice finds are expected to find their work cut out when they clash with the Caliente developments of the past month.

Steward Pitches H8K's To Victory
BY TOM ENGELMAN
Bob Steward, a new eighth grade pitcher, stepped into the "footlights" yesterday in an invitational baseball game at Willard. Steward, pitcher for the H-8-K's, batted three men in every inning he pitched, allowed two hits, but no earned runs. Of the opposing team, the H-7-12's, First Baseman Licero was outstanding. Licero got a triple in the first inning with two aboard. The score was 5 to 1 in favor of the H-7-12's until the last inning when the H-8-K's forged ahead in a rally to win with a score of 6 to 5.

CONSOLATION FOR BRADDOCK!

Champs Not Necessarily Big; Carnera Sensitive
BLANTON WOW UNDER LIGHTS

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, May 22.—Putting too much sport here and there: James J. Braddock can take some consolation (and they say he'll need it) from the fact that on paper Max Baer is too big. . . only five champions have scaled more than 200 pounds. . . five others were under 190 and the rest right around that figure, which is what James J. scales. . . Cy Blanton, the Pirates' rookie hurler who has won six out of seven, first came into fame as a strikeout wonder under floodlights in the minors. . . He should give Cincinnati something to talk about if he gets a whack at the Reds in any of their night games.

Tony Lazzeri doesn't like spaghetti. . . For the first time, programs on the Kentucky Derby were sold in New York this year. . . Some of our athletes are getting a little apply. . . Primo Carnera doesn't want to be kidded about his fiddle feet any more and "Daffy" Dean resents being shoved out of the limelight. . . Though knifed from many angles, Jimmy Johnston has been the Garden matchmaker longer than any predecessor—four years—Eddie Casey, Dartmouth baseballer, is a nephew of Harvard's famous footballer of the same name.</

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

-- News Behind the News --

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

SCOOP!

The efficient "Triple A" publicity system appears to have slipped a cog somewhere. At least, in all its recent handouts of accomplishments, it has failed to mention its greatest—the conversion of Senator Smith. This is said to be due to modesty, but, if so, it is the first time a publicity man has been accused of such a deficiency.

However, the news should not be suppressed. Let it be known now and forever that, if the farm program should break down, it may not prove a total loss, as long as the AAA has won its seyerest Democratic critic.

How it did it is not exactly clear. There are several official and unofficial versions. No matter which one you accept, it will be a tribute to the political sagacity of the Wallace-Davis regime, which was not supposed to know anything about politics.

SIGNIFICANCE

The AAA boys have been working on Smith for the past 18 months, unsuccessfully. He is very important to them because he is chairman of the senate agriculture committee, which handles their legislation. He blocked their amendments last session and helped to hold up their plans for strengthening their program. This year, he also assisted in the strong Democratic congressional resistance to these same AAA amendments. Recently, however, he reported them out and now he is going to vote for them.

Not only that, but he also cooperated privately to the extent of letting the AAA crowd write the report which he submitted to the senate in his own name. Since the millers, packers and other processors contesting the amendments have heard about this, they are confessing sotto voce that their fight is lost. A few other Democratic senators will carry on (Byrd, Lons, Moore and perhaps George), but they cannot be successful without Smith.

ECONOMICS

The explanation which Smith has offered to his friends is economic. It is his view that the foreign market for cotton is being lost. As long as foreign markets are not available, some domestic price protection program is essential. He does not care much about the domestic allotment plan, but is willing to accept it reluctantly in view of the foreign situation. He knows more about cotton than anyone else in congress, and his views are influential with the powerful southern segment of the Democratic party.

To appease that whole group, the AAA has agreed to put the old McNary-Haugen stabilization fee idea and the old debenture plan into the new amendments. These old plans are not to be used unless the AAA sees fit. The AAA boys say that, therefore, the concession does not amount to much. Some substantial persons on the inside of this situation have a different view. They believe that, within the next year, the AAA will get around to these more precise methods of maintaining a high domestic price against a cheaper foreign price. Strong sentiment for such export subsidies exists inside the farm bureau federation, among cotton brokers, railroads and others. There really seems to be something in the wind along this line.

If the AAA comes to this view, it would mean that, in the end, it will be converted by Senator Smith instead of Smith by it.

PRESSURE

An added inducement to the senator, however, may be discovered in the way the AAA crowd has been beating the bushes in his home state. Their propaganda activities down there have been ostensibly in favor of the administration program, but, naturally, these centered against Smith personally.

sonally. A lot of things are supposed to have been dug up. The extent of South Carolina support for the AAA program was manifest in the recent farmers' march on Washington. Smith was out of town at the time, but he heard about it.

There is no question now that the AAA encouraged the promotion of that march as part of its decentralized lobbying for its amendments. It is working vigorously on the old American Legion lobbying plan of promoting sentiment among the folks back home for the influence it will have on congress, rather than working on congressmen here directly.

One bright AAA boy recently suggested to Mr. Wallace the employment of an unofficial lobbyist to work for the department directly on congress here. Mr. Wallace rejected the idea on the ground that it might look bad.

CHANGES

The AAA crowd has made many changes in its amendments. All were made to meet specific objections from congressmen and others. Essentially, they do not amount to much. For instance, the old ones permitted the AAA crowd to go freely into the books of processors. As now drawn, they permit inspection of the books only on pertinent matters, and the AAA cannot make the information public. The word "reduction" (of acreage) has been changed to "adjustment."

All the changes really mean is that the AAA can alter its program if it wants to, but it is not required to.

BALLOON?

The announcement that Governor Lehman of New York would not be a candidate for re-election struck the Democratic party bosses here as a trial balloon to test his strength. They believe he will run again if sufficient popular sentiment develops. Apparently Postmaster General Farley is out of it in any event. He is supposed to be satisfied with the mention of Robert Jackson (government attorney who prosecuted Andrew Mellon) in case Lehman does not run.

TAMMANY

As the Democratic politicians here size it up, the voters are moving out on Tammany. They think the old powerful political outfit is on its last legs. Its subjects are continuing to scatter out into the suburbs of the city, getting away from the old ward control. This movement will undoubtedly be developed further in the next few years.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

DETERMINATION

Secretary Morgenthau's testimony before Senator Glass' banking subcommittee was a severe shock to New York conservatives—and FDR's approval of it made it worse. They had of course expected him to endorse the banking bill, but his advocacy of an independent monetary authority and of government ownership of the federal reserve banks was a complete surprise. It's only a few weeks since Undersecretary Jefferson Coolidge remarked that the banks really should have some say about how their money is invested and financial men had assumed that his chief shared his views.

Backers of Frank Vanderlip's federal monetary authority plan were cheered in inverse ratio to the bankers' displeasure. They have been working right along on their treasury contacts but open support from such high official quarters was beyond their immediate dreams. Neither camp looks for definite action on the "Supreme Court of Finance" at this session—but both are confident it will be a hot issue next year.

This development intensifies the private determination of powerful banking interests that Mr. Roosevelt shall not return to the White House in 1937.

FACTUAL

A famous industrialist who is dropping his responsibilities for the time being will devote his attention to statistical research designed to demolish misinformation spread by New Deal economists. His contention is that the brain trusters have been too ready to accept as gospel—without examination—faulty premises which happened to lead to the conclusions they wished to reach.

He has in mind such "facts" as the widely circulated statement that two per cent of the people own 80 per cent of the national wealth. These figures were the result of a limited analysis in a single state—yet they have been presented as if true of the country as a whole. This is cited as a typical sample of careless and inaccurate rationalizing from the particular to the general.

His studies will background a broad scientific attack on Washington theories based on hearsay. He is convinced that most of the New Deal traces to "wish-fulfillment" thinking rather than provable knowledge—and that its foundations will crumble under a factual barrage. The impersonality of the assault is expected to make it more effective.

CURE

Republican strategy is shaping around a balanced budget keynote. Its appeal will be tested in the near future with various kinds of audiences and in different sections of the country. If popular response is at all favorable back-stage leaders are planning to make this the major issue of the '36 campaign.

An outstanding speaker is scheduled for a number of talks in which he will stress the wonderful recovery achieved by Great Britain and will credit Britain's balanced budget with effecting the cure. Impartial New Yorkers doubt that the British are as satisfied with their comeback as are their G.O.P. admirers.

USES

The Guaranty Trust may not be popular in Washington but the New Dealers aren't at all bashful about borrowing its executives to help them with organization work. Vice President J. L. O'Neill is still at the capital as chief personnel officer of NRA. Mr. O'Neill was originally loaned for 90 days. He handled his job so well that the "loan" was extended for an additional three months at the personal request of none other than Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. O'Neill's salary is being paid by the Guaranty Trust while he's in the government service—by an agreement reached before-hand. Insiders understand the bank considers it a good investment. He is well liked and has gotten to know a lot of senators and congressmen well enough to call them by their first names. You never can tell when contacts like that will come in handy.

The Guaranty's latest contribution to the New Deal is Assistant Comptroller Paul Holmes—loaned to Secretary Morgenthau for 60 days to help set up an accounting system for work-relief. A New Yorker wryly remarks that even bankers seem to have their uses.

FUN

Financial insiders learn that George Peek's statements about foreign trade—which caused so much cussing in the state department—was prepared by a man who got the job through sources which are delighted by the spectacle of a secretary of state harassed by an "adviser to the president." Crossing live wires within the administration is their idea of good clean fun. Comment runs that they are not only enjoying the show themselves but have invited their friends to share their private chuckles.

SYSTEM

Informed Wall Streeters will eat their fodoras if there haven't been some skilled pool operations in the stock market lately. The tape action of certain stocks showed all the trademarks. Yet it's admitted that the securities commission would have a heck of a time liberating with the law.

That's because the smart lads have evolved a new system. Participants of what would have been called a pool in the good old days simply place their buy or sell orders at the same time as individuals through many different brokers and under many different names. So far this device looks hole-proof. It would take a combination Sherlock Holmes and Einstein to ferret out collusion.

BAIT

Strong rumors persist in Wall Street that the dollar will be devalued to 50 cents in June. They are especially active in what are known as "wise" circles. The best-informed sources aren't at all impressed. They suspect—from the way the reports have been spread—that a few big traders are trying to "talk up" the gold stocks in order to unload their own holdings at better prices. This kind of bait has often lured suckers before now.

MANY

The committee of Americans—advocating a two per cent federal sales tax and opposing "bureaucratic control"—is a recent addition to the swelling ranks of conservative groups with political objectives. All of them are angling vigorously for members and cash and their logical prospects—big-time financial men—are getting a bit fed up. "There are so darn many of these committees it looks as if it would cost more to save the country than to let the New Dealers have their way." Copyright, 1935, McClure Newspaper Syn.

FINAL CANTANDO
CONCERT HELD
BEST OF YEAR

By Eleanor Elliott

Bringing to a conclusion its ninth successful season, Cantando club last night presented its third and final concert for the year with a sense of triumph for the months as seen in retrospect, and an even stronger sense of anticipation for the future. For no audience could leave a concert hall so imbued with the spirit of music as was last night's crowd at Orange union high school auditorium, and be content without the assurance that other equally fine programs were in prospect.

So it was with no sense of finality that music lovers met this closing program, but rather with deep satisfaction brought by the knowledge that Leon Eckles, director, Miss Ruth Armstrong, accompanist, and men of Cantando club will continue to give in the future, as they have in the past nine years, of their fine talents.

There were many in the audience who declared that last night's opening choruses provided the most appealing introduction of any concert of the year. There was so much of the rollicking sea chanty in "Rolling Down to Rio," and so much of tender beauty in "Songs My Mother Taught Me," (Dvorak) that all musical tastes were satisfied.

Luboviski Is Soloist

The variety that marked the work of the chorus continued in the offerings of Calmon Luboviski, distinguished Pacific coast violinist, who was the club's guest artist. Although his radio programs have made Calmon Luboviski's name a household word, it has been his personal appearances to Santa Ana and Orange county audiences. The strength and singular purity of his tone, the fluid quality which he imparts to his violin by a remarkable bowing technique and the depth of his musical understanding have made him one of the most appreciated artists ever appearing here.

These qualities were deeply apparent last night, as he played to Miss Armstrong's intensely sympathetic accompaniment. "The Gypsy" by Ellis Levy; Schubert's "Serenade" and the extremely modern "Flight" dedicated to Charles Lindbergh by its composer, Paul Kochanski, comprised his first group, to which was added as an encore, "The Swan," by Saint Saens.

The club singers resumed their program with the deep organ tones of "Lo, a Voice to Heaven Sound" by Borntiansky (Homer Whitling), followed by a capella, followed by Horsman's "Bird of the Wilderness," interpreted so beautifully that the audience demanded its repetition. There was a rippling gaiety to Rossini's "Moonlight on the Water" that made it especially bright and joyous as a conclusion to the first half of the program.

During intermission, G. R. Stoner, Cantando president, summarized the club's activities during the past season and its plans for the future. During the course of his talk, he told of the extent of the library of music acquired during the nine years of its existence, a library boasting 175 different numbers with a total of more than 10,000 copies. He also told of the vision and the application of Leon Eckles, founder and director, that made the organization possible, and the qualities that made Miss Armstrong invaluable as accompanist. In explaining the bond of a love for music which brought the members together, he told that in their business activities, they represented 26 general occupations or 48 distinct lines of work.

Resuming the program, the club opened with Stephen Foster's "Beautiful Dreamer," the melody of which had a hummed chorus accompaniment. "Song of the Steppes" (Tchaikovsky) was one of the most ambitious numbers of the evening, expressing all the underlying melancholy of the Slavic peoples.

Opening with "Ave Maria" (Schubert), Calmon Luboviski included on his second violin group, two other brilliant numbers, the technically difficult and most interesting "Hora Stancu" (Dinicu Heltet) and the Sarasate, "Introduction of Tarentelle." He received an innovation that recalled him for successive bows and which he finally acknowledged by playing a Brahms waltz as an encore number. In receiving the plaudits, he graciously included Miss Armstrong, insisting upon her receiving the praise that was due her for her fine work at the piano.

The chorus proffered a delightful bit of serio-comic foolery in "Far Off in the Waste of Desert Sands," that Irish folk song, "The Galway Piper" which was such a success on an earlier program, with its piper's strains evident in the piano accompaniment and meriting an encore last night; a Negro folk song in Foster's "De Camp-town Races" and closed both program and season on the high note of Charles Wakefield Cadman's "Service."

DUKES NAMED
PRESIDENT OF BROTHERHOOD

Fred Dukes of Buena Park was chosen president of the Orange County Church brotherhood at the second annual meeting of the group, held in the First Methodist church of Garden Grove last night.

Other officers elected were Ira E. Welde, La Habra, vice president, and Allen W. Goddard, Garden Grove, secretary-treasurer. The nominating committee was composed of Ira E. Welde, Robert McAulay, Grover Ralston and Howard Robinson.

In a group of resolutions passed by the brotherhood, it expressed itself as specifically opposed to the manufacture of munitions in time of war or great public emergency by private business, and recommended the government manufacture of war supplies in such times.

Other resolutions recommended that churches take a decided stand for economic justice; urged that an effort be put forth by churches and church societies for decency in motion pictures; urged that the truth be published regarding the evils of tobacco, and went on record as against any limitation of free speech and free press in the United States.

The resolutions were presented by a committee composed of A. M. Robinson, M. L. Pearson, E. Beamer, C. M. Doves, R. Emili, W. C. Mauerhan, Joseph Rees, L. I. Chamlee, Albert Kelly and D. E. Gaylord.

Dr. Angus McLeod, pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian church of Long Beach, was the featured speaker of the evening, taking as his subject, "Christian Ideals in Business and Social Relations and International Relations." He reviewed the past 25 years, showing moral standards in private and social life until the World war, following the war, and up to the present time. He expressed himself as hopeful of a rising tide of moral life by reaching the oncoming generations through the church.

Musical features of the evening included numbers by the Young People's orchestra of the Garden Grove First Methodist church, un-

LOUISE BACKS,
PIONEER OF
ANAHEIM, DIES

Mrs. Louise Backs, 72, one of the earliest pioneer settlers of Anaheim, died at her home, 235 North Claudina street, in Anaheim early this morning.

Mrs. Backs, who is the aunt of County Clerk Joe Backs, and the mother of Mrs. Emilie Walbridge of Santa Ana, came to Anaheim in 1859, two years after the Mother Colony was founded.

Born in San Francisco in 1857, she was but two years of age when she went to Anaheim.

Before her parents, Herman and Elise Werder came to Anaheim, they drew lots for homesteads in San Francisco. They drew a place at Clifton and South streets where they established a winery in their vineyard. In 1875 she was married to Ferdinand A. Backs of Anaheim, who eight years earlier had established a furniture and undertaking business in Anaheim. The firm of Backs, Terry and Campbell is the outgrowth of the organization formed 88 years ago.

Mrs. Backs is survived by four children, 11 grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Mathilde Niehaus of Berkeley, Calif. The four children who survive her are Fred A. Backs, secretary of the Savings, Loan and Building association of Anaheim, Mrs. Emma Jackson and Miss Frances Backs of Anaheim and Mrs. Walbridge of Santa Ana.

The surviving grand children are Lawrence Walbridge, Pasadena, Evelyn Sloan of Los Angeles, Catherine W. and Virginia E. Walbridge of Santa Ana, Louise Mae Jackson of Lombard, Ill., James, Charles and Warren Jackson and Miss Florence Backs, Vern and Evan Backs, all of Anaheim.

Funeral services will be announced later by Backs, Terry & Campbell.

RAMONA BOULEVARD

The new Ramona boulevard entering Los Angeles from the east will be completed within the next few weeks, according to the National Automobile club. This important project which provides traffic with an "airline" route from the Civic Center to Pomona and points east, is the final connecting link of the Los Angeles Pomona out-off on which construction was begun in 1932.

Under the direction of A. D. Brownell, and three selections by the quartet of the Fullerton Christian church.

FOOT CLINIC TO BE HELD IN S. A.

A two day foot clinic will be held at the Rice Shoe store, 309 West Fourth street, commencing tomorrow. It was announced this morning by Fred H. Rice, proprietor of the concern. This clinic, to be conducted by the Arch-Lock Shoe company, and will give foot sufferers an opportunity to have adjustments and diagnosis of their foot trouble made at very small cost.

"These treatments, when used with the Dr. Hiss Classified shoes, are bringing relief and complete foot correction to hundreds of Southern California people," Rice said. A large attendance at the clinic is expected.

No appointments will be necessary in order to participate in the clinic, Rice said, unless private treatment is required. Orthopedic treatment recommended by foot specialists from all over the world is used.

The will leaves to a daughter, Vivian, a 10 acre farm in Michigan; Helena, child at 314 South Helena street, Anaheim; an interest in property at Stanton and Compton, a bank account of unexpired amount, and two diamond rings. Y COMMITTEES
IN CONFERENCE
ON YEAR'S WORK

With most of the committee members present, a committee conference was held last night at the Y. M. C. A. for a preview of plans and problems to be met by the various committees during the season's work. With R. Carson Smith, newly elected president, conducting the discussions, and with the committee chairmen presenting their plans, it appeared that an even busier season of service to the community is in prospect at the Y. M. C. A. building.

It was indicated by the boys' work committee, of which H. G. Nelson is chairman, that the coming summer camp at Oseola is going to be one of the best in years, while in the work at the building, a monthly social event for fathers and sons is in preparation, along with the regular Friday night boys' programs that have been popular for the past year.

The committee on adult program, Frank A. Henderson, chairman, has in prospect the institution of a "family night" such as has been used in the past, whereby during the summer there will be a weekly night for families to enjoy the privilege of a social swim. There are also extensive developments in prospect for making the swimming pool generally available during the summer, both for instruction and for recreational swimming.

The house committee, with H. W. Lewis as chairman, has recommended a number of items for the improvement of the building and equipment, which is showing signs of wear after eleven years of hard use, and the finance committee, headed by D. G. Tibball, is in the process of studying budgets and planning for the further financing of the work.

All of the committees are getting down to work, according to President Smith, and indications point to a busy and useful summer in connection with the work of the association. It is expected that more detailed reports of progress will be ready for the next regular monthly meeting of the Y board of directors, to be held on June 10.

CHAPTER I

It was July, the hour 8 o'clock in the morning. Locusts sang in the high elms bordering the winding road which capped the ridge of hills. The deep blue sky was brushed over with wisps of clouds, and there was in the air a threat of the intense heat which would presently brood over the whole countryside in the quiet of midday. A bridle path wandered through the stillness, and there was a church-like hush in the deep places, where brooks ran over copper colored stones and toads hopped in the long grass.

Katharine Strykhurst walked her mare through the woods, slowly at first, later spurring her to a more daring gait. The beautiful Katharine was frowning this fine morning. Her dark, exquisitely arched brows almost met over fine eyes of an intense dark blue. Her fair hair, fine and silky, with a sheen of authentic gold in its deep waves, was brushed straight back from her brow and gathered into a knot at the nape of her neck. Her white linen jodhpurs, her casually open white shirt, set off her looks to perfection. Yet there was something almost startling in the contrast between the darkness of those eyes and the fairness of her skin and hair. Katharine, in fact, was a mass of contradictions, and was occasionally proud of it. She was at once proud and humble, arrogant and gentle; her spirit suffered keenly because of the contrariness of her warring emotions.

This morning was a fair example. She had come to the riding club—Michael Heatheroe's club—fully expecting Michael to accompany her on her morning canter. For weeks now—ever since the early part of April, actually—that had been the accepted order of things. Katharine no longer needed the service of a groom. She handled the little mare now with spirit and authority, but it has been Michael's habit to mount his roan and lead her along the paths. This particular morning another pupil had been at the stables before her—a plump, dark, lusciously pretty girl whom Katherine recognized as Sally Moon, one of the girls who had gone to the same school Katherine had attended in the village of Innicoch, which lay below her now in the shimmering haze of morning.

KATHARINE had nodded coldly to Sally who was resplendent in breeches and brightly polished boots and who wore the most absurd of crocheted yellow sports berets on her dark mass of curls, at an absurd angle.

The colored boy had come out, grinning at Katharine, leading the little mare known as Fury. Katharine had shut off the ignition, had leaped out of her car, and (not without a flourish) had mounted Fury's back with ease and elegance.

She had heard Sally say languidly to Tips: "Is Michael coming?"

Out of the corner of her eye, Katharine had been aware that Tips had nodded in the direction of the stables, whence Michael Heatheroe was at that moment emerging. The sun caught the crest of his red hair and made it gleam. Katharine felt her heart plunge, right itself. It was insane—this is the way her traitorous nerves always behaved when Michael first appeared on the scene. A perfectly ordinary young man in riding clothes, she told herself, proudly and scornfully: that was all he was.

Michael had greeted her with an unself-conscious smile. "Sorry I can't ride with you. I've a lesson." He had thrown a glance in Sally's direction, and Katharine had forced her stiff lips into the semblance of a smile. Naturally he would ride with Sally Moon, if she were a beginner.

Katharine threw up her handsome head with an impatient gesture, going over the brief scene again.

"I'm quite, quite mad," she confided to the silent aisles, riding by. Certainly it was none of her business if Michael had a new pupil. He needed all he could get during the spring and summer season. All the summer people went back to the city the first of September, leaving Innicoch shuttered and silent. No, Michael had to look to his own affairs while summer people rented big houses on the bay and along the lanes.

SOME men liked Sally Moon's type; there was no doubt about that. Sally was luscious, sun-kissed, like a peach that has ripened over-long. Her chocolate-colored eyes slid in all directions, especially in the direction of whatever man happened to be about. She had a way of sidling up to men, half bold, half coy.

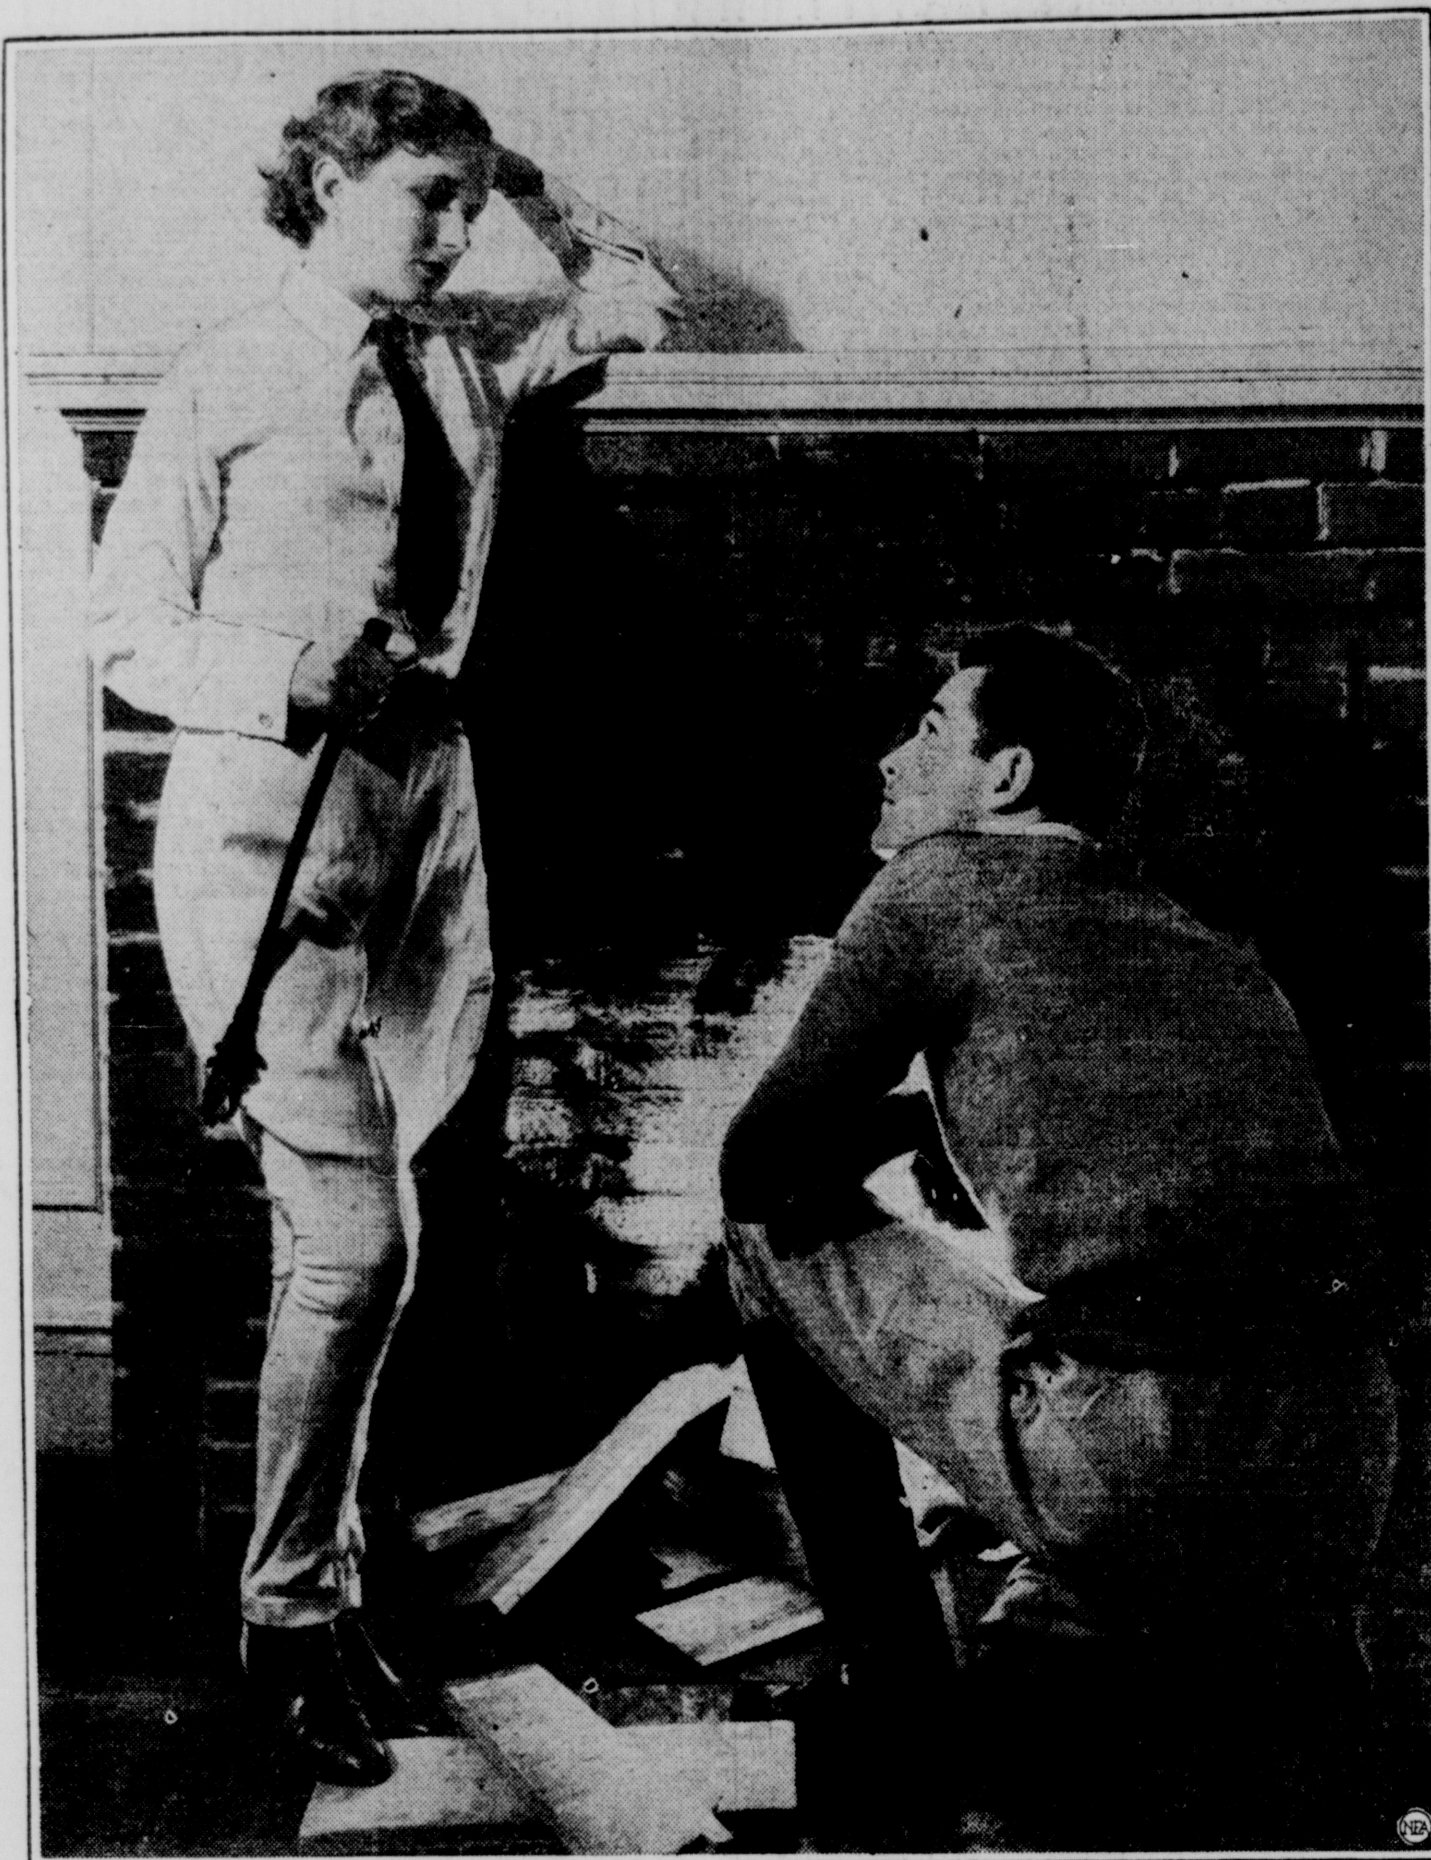

"I can't—I won't compete with that sort of thing, Katharine Strykhurst confided aloud to the world and was startled at herself. Who was asking her to compete with Sally? What on earth was she raving about?

She began to laugh, and with the first rippling sound her black mood slid from her shoulders. What a fool she was, making a mountain out of a molehill! Michael was her friend, a tall, rangy young man with a slow smile and a caressing note in his voice for everyone. Sally was only a small town coquet with too much makeup on and a trick of making every triangular conversation seem a competition in sex.

In a good humor now, Katharine galloped the mare the last few paces of that stretch of lane which would presently cross the Shore Road which was Innicoch's main artery. This far out, it was a broad ribboned highway, flanked by red and white gas stations and an occasional mammoth sign. A mile or two back from the Sound, it became Innicoch's Main Street, with tall maples shading old white houses with green shutters. Further down still was the bank, the white-painted church, the library, Miss Matilda's nursery school, and a grocery store. Innicoch was an old village, sleepy, comfortable, leisurely. Katharine often said, with passion, that she hated it.

She lived in one of the oldest and largest of the stone houses down on the Point. It was set in the midst of park-like acres. Its Norman turret was hung with ivy, and in summer clematis drooped mournfully from its portico. Within it was dark with seasoned oak, eastern rugs, bronze lamps and red velvet hangings. Twenty-five years ago it had been a "show-place," and in the eyes of Katharine's trim, modern stepmother it was that still. Her father, white-haired, portly, a lawyer down in the city, never thought of changing anything about it.

Katharine said to herself that she hated it. When she came

Presently Michael had a blaze going. Katharine, looking down at him, said, "Well, go on—lecture me—" into her mother's money—that would be next March, and she was looking forward to it—she would find herself a gay, modern apartment down in the city and would furnish it in the modern manner—tweedy fabrics, chairs fashioned of chromium tubing, angled tables with glittering mirrored surfaces.

Her father and her stepmother had no idea what went on under those smooth fair brows. Inwardly Katharine seethed; outwardly, at least, she was calm. This riding club of Michael Heatheroe's had given her a much needed outlet lately. When things palled on her, when life seemed "too utterly poisonous" to bear another minute, she would slip into her riding things and drive to Shady Ridge where the good smell of trampled earth, the stamping of horses in their stalls satisfied something to herself. Not that she would acknowledge, even for a minute, that she was interested in Michael.

A GLANCE at her watch now warned her that her hour was nearly ended. She spurred the little horse back in the direction from which she had come.

Fury paused obediently at the intersection of the bridle path and River Road. Michael had taught her to do this and, even though Katharine's touch on the bridle urged her on, she hesitated, nervously pawing the red earth. Katharine, roused from her thoughts, stared unseeing for a moment into the eyes of the girl in the little green car which had drawn up as Fury emerged from the green tunnel.

"Zoe Parker! When did you get back?"

The car door slammed and Zoe ran forward uttering shrill cries of greeting. Zoe, Katharine told herself critically, was really lovely. Those glittering white teeth, that charming warm blush of sunburn, those bright blue dancing eyes! Pity Zoe was such a crashing fool!

"Hel-lo, darling!"

Zoe was in white linen with a vest of dark blue linen, dotted in white. Her shoes, her hat, her gloves were all unbelievably crisp.

"You look smart!"

"Thanks. You do, too, darling!" Zoe cried. "We just got in last night. I was going to call you. How are you and what've you been doing?"

"Oh, the usual," Katharine drawled.

"I'm crazy to see everybody," Zoe declared. Everybody knew that Zoe's ambitious mother had whisked her to Europe in May in order to avoid a scandal about Gibbs Larkin. Gibbs was 35, handsome in a thoroughly dissolute way, consciousnessless. Zoe had fallen headlong in love with him, with all her lightning impetuosity. Gibbs, people said, would never marry. He was one of those eternal bachelors who sip sweets where they will. Zoe had recklessly and defiantly been seen with him every place.

These girls who fall so wildly and recklessly in love, thought Katharine, contemptuously!

They chatted for a few moments longer, making an engagement to meet that afternoon.

"Has she 'got over' Gibbs?" Katharine wondered. She did hope Zoe would spare her the confidences. These love recitals were bound to be boring. Katharine prided herself on her imperviousness to the grand passion. Love was stupid. It tied you all up, got your feelings confused. There was no sense to it.

All of which, of course, had nothing whatever to do with her feelings about Michael. She and Michael had simply been friends, good comrades, and it was perfectly natural she should be slightly miffed when he so casually gave away the hour which had been sacred to her for months.

Her face reddened, as she waved goodbye to Zoe.

"What's the matter, darling?"

"Nothing," Katharine lied, valiantly. "Just a heat wave, I guess."

It was because she had been annoyed to have used the word "sacred" even to herself, in connection with her friendship with Michael. What was the matter with her anyway?

THAT was Thursday morning. On Friday she went for her ride as usual, and Michael was there, tall, lean and casual.

"Mawnn!"

She smiled at him with just the right degree of casualness. "Good morning."

He tightened a strap, patted Prince Charlie's gleaming flank. "Storm comin' up!" he announced.

"Oh, do you think so?" But Katharine's query was not the usual feminine flutter. She adored storms.

"Maybe I'd better take this," Michael flung an oilskin slicker across Prince Charlie's back.

"Not for me," Katharine said coolly.

The red-haired young man glanced at her quizzically a moment, then called to Tips: "Here, catch this!"

The slicker sailed through the air, landing in a pile of hay. The colored boy ran to retrieve it, with a flash of white teeth in an ebony face.

"Just as you say," Micheal announced. He swung a long leg over his western saddle, leading the way.

The trees arched overhead in a conspiracy of silence. In the dim interstices where the sky could be seen there were patches of angry clouds. From the west rose a rumble of deep thunder.

"You won't mind gettin' wet?"

He looked back at her over his shoulder, his gentle voice courteous as usual.

Katharine laughed. "No, why should I?"

The deep roll of distant thunder increased. They crossed an open meadow with a river meandering alongside and an orange flash of lightning licked across the sky. Suddenly they were again in the woods, the horses wading carefully through the shallow stream and plunging up the muddy banks.

Now the rain came down, suddenly, in torrents, in violent sheets. For the main part, the trees protected them, but soon the path again crossed a civilized road, a main highway.

Great angry peals of thunder sounded, and the sky was made livid by the almost continual flashes of lightning. The horses were nervous. Fury danced and whinnied, refusing to proceed.

At the side of the road was a small blue-roofed cottage which had once housed a district school, and later an amateur radio station. It was unoccupied now. At the rear was a rude shelter for horses. Michael, without consulting Katharine, cantered back to her, and seizing Fury's bridle, led the nervous little animal under cover.

"We'd better stop here a minute," he said quietly. "It's foolhardy to go on just now."

Michael helped her to dismount. Then he tied both Fury and Prince Charlie to the rude rail of the shelter and quieted them with his reassuring voice.

"We can go inside, if you like," he told the girl, after a particularly vicious flash of light. "I had to stop here last week in that cloudburst—remember? I had a party of kids. They were scared stiff."

He pushed open the door, disclosing a narrow room with a bricked fireplace and some battered school benches. Someone had evidently built a fire. There were the remains of logs, charred and broken, in the grate.

"Cheerful place," Katharine commented dryly.

He glanced at her curiously. "It's not so much. Here—let me dust that thing off. You can sit down."

"I'd better not," Katharine hugged her arms about her.

Michael knelt, making shift, with a bundle of twigs at the side of the fireplace, and the remains of the logs. Presently he had a blaze going. The west wind whipped in at the open door and Katharine shivered, in spite of herself.

"Well, go on—lecture me—" she said, looking down at him.

The tall young man turned from the grate, dusting off his lean, long fingered hands.

"For what?"

She regarded him coolly, lighting a cigaret with fingers that shook a little.

"Oh, for being stubborn—not taking the slicker—"

"Oh, that!"

He turned back to the fire, appearing to forget her.

Suddenly Katharine felt rage sweep her. To be ignored like this was strangely maddening! She inhaled deeply, frowning angrily at the absorbed young man, who bent so solicitously over the fire. She knew well enough what Sally Moon—or Zoe Parker—would do on such an occasion. Sally would whimper a little and shiver and be wistful and there would be a good deal of argument about accepting the man's coat. Michael didn't have a coat, but that didn't matter. He ought at least to show some human concern about her. Why, she might have pneumonia.

KATHARINE, struck suddenly by the utter nonsense of her reasoning (she almost never had a cold), laughed aloud. "What's the joke?"

She glanced sideways, at Michael Heatheroe. "Nothing you'd understand!"

He flushed, the brick tint showing above the deep dark stain of his sunburn.

"I'm not so slow," he drawled in that easy western voice of his.

"I didn't mean that," Katharine hastened to say.

Outside the thunder rolled and pealed, the sky steadily darkened, and occasional angry flashes of lightning illuminated the room. The rain, obedient to a dervish wind, tore in at the door, and Michael closed it. Now they were shut in together.

"This may go on all morning," she said, at random, wishing only to break the silence.

"Oh, I don't think it will. It's lifting now . . ."

But she had the feeling that he, too, wasn't thinking of what he was saying. Were both of them a little mad, sheltering from a mere thunderstorm this summer morning?

"Fury doesn't like it," he said, of the lightning. "She's nervous."

"Just like a woman," Katharine said scornfully.

Her tone roused him.

"I've known plenty of men who didn't like storms, either."

"Oh, but have you?" Katharine mocked him. Some devil of perverseness seemed to possess her. She wanted to startle, shock, annoy him—stir him out of his usual calm acceptance of her.

"Sure enough!"

SHE stared at him, drinking in every line of his face, the quizzical gray eyes with the little laughter wrinkles etched around them. Michael was—how old? Twenty-eight? His shoulders were broad, his waist slim, like a true horseman's. She knew, she told herself, dozens of men better-looking, smarter, better educated in every way. Why on earth did she bother with him?

"You don't think much of us around here, do you?" she pursued, scarcely knowing what she said.

"You all—people in Innicoch?"

"Yes. You think we're all spoiled children—or something." Her tone was hateful and she knew it, but for the life of her she couldn't change it.

Michael stared at her thoughtfully. She had an impulse, almost irresistible, to reach up and rumple that dark red crest of hair, from which the stubborn curl had carefully been ironed only that morning.

"Folks around here have been mighty nice to me."

"Mighty nice!" She mocked his soft, easy drawl.

Suddenly she felt both her hands imprisoned, in a grip of steel. Gray eyes darkening like the stormy skies without looked into hers.

"You don't—you mustn't . . ."

"Mustn't what?"

The treacherous tide within her warmed her heart. Was this surrender, of which she had heard so much?

But Michael Heatheroe dropped her hands, released her as suddenly as he had seized her. "I beg your pardon," he muttered. "You sure made me mad, Miss Strykhurst. I guess I forgot myself . . ."

Students To Take Music Tests Broadcast Over Air

ORANGE COUNTY GRADE PUPILS TO TAKE PART

Grade pupils from all of Orange county will participate next Tuesday in the first county-wide elementary school music discrimination test ever to be given over the radio. The contest will be under the direction of Mrs. Mabel Spizly, director of music in elementary schools of Orange county.

The contest will be broadcast from radio station KREG beginning at 9:30 o'clock the morning of May 23, and will be taken by grade pupils as they sit in their class rooms. The tests are the culmination of the year's music department work in the Orange county schools, and all pupils have been training for months in preparation for the event.

Included in the tests will be work in identifying various instruments played in solo, instruments played in combinations, how instruments are played, the number of themes which are included in selections, identification of a waltz, minuet and gavotte, identification of various types of marches, including funeral, military, religious, triumphal, and wedding, memory tests, and identification of folk songs.

As officials of the school music departments have felt that parents of school children might be interested in taking the same test as their children, The Register is publishing sample test papers today at the end of this article.

The tests will be divided in 10 sections, and the name of each instrument, combination of instruments, selections and types of selections played will be given on the papers. Each item will have a blank space opposite it, and as it is played those taking the tests will be required to write the order of its sequence opposite it.

Music for the tests will be played by the Fullerton High school and Junior college orchestra, under the direction of Harold E. Walberg, of the Fullerton Union High school faculty. The instruments and selections to be played follow:

1. Instrument Selection: Violin, clarinet, flute, cello, trombone, trumpet.
2. Combination Selection: Strings, woodwind, two clarinets, bassoon, brass, trumpet, horn, trombone, violin, cello, harp, violin, flute, harp.
3. Manner Selection Played: Violin, cello, flute, bells, trombone, oboe, trumpet, cymbals, chimes, triangle, gong, clarinet, violin, string bass, piccolo, tambourine, French horn, tympani, castanets, snare drum, bass drum.
4. Number of Themes: Shoemaker's dance; amaryllis, viola, cello, harp; minuet, violin.
5. Type Identification: Waltz, from Herbert's "Sweethearts"; minuet, gavotte.

Labor Head Asks Public Buy Poppies

Commander Glen Hendrickson, of Ernest Kellogg post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, received a copy of a communication from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, he announced today, which urged support of the VFW Buddy Poppy Day, which is on next Saturday. The letter follows:

"Years have passed since that fateful November 11 when the guns of the Great War were silenced. But the cessation of the cannons' thunder, the declaration of peace, the signing of the Peace Treaty, were not all that followed in the grim red footsteps of War.

"There were those who returned from battle maimed in body, broken in mind, crippled to the extent of forever being unfitted for the occupations and customs of normal living. These have become the nations sacred wars.

Poppy Is Emblem

"The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, the organization representative of those who stood shoulder to shoulder with our Allies, the French, the Belgians, Italians and English in conquering the Central Powers, has adopted the Buddy Poppy as a symbolic tribute to those comrades who now forever sleep within the Silent City of the Dead.

"And those of the veterans who returned but who, year after year, must be prisoners of a bed or chair, have turned from the sword and gun to fashion silken poppy leaves.

"Wear a Buddy Poppy on Memorial Day, rather than from hospital wards in glowing swirls of color; heap high their crimson beauty on green mound and white stone. Forget for a day the common things of life.

"You are free to walk in the sun, to run with the wind. They are held by bonds of pain and suffering they may not break—they are prisoners for life that you may be free. They who marched side by side with you in exaltation of high resolve must now while away their hours shaping silken poppy leaves.

"Buy a Buddy Poppy on Poppy Day."

SANTA ANA MAN WINS $100 FOR PRIZE SLOGAN

"Happiness Begins With a Home."

Just five words, but they were worth $20 per word to F. A. Lawrence of 408 Harwood Place, Santa Ana, manager of the Nichols Dollar Store in Santa Ana.

For Lawrence was notified today that he had been adjudged first prize winner in the slogan contest conducted by the National Housing Exposition in Los Angeles and has been awarded a $100 cash prize for his slogan, "Happiness Begins With a Home."

The letter of notification was accompanied by two season passes, and Lawrence was requested to attend the Exposition on Santa Ana Day on next Saturday, when the check for $100 will be presented to him. Present plans call for the presentation in a brief ceremony in a program starting at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening.

Lawrence's slogan was chosen the winner out of nearly 15,000 slogans submitted, it was reported today.

"We congratulate you on your success in this contest, especially in view of the large number of entries submitted, and trust that you will be able to attend the Exposition on Santa Ana Day to receive your check," states the letter received by Lawrence from J. Howard Johnson, contest editor of the Housing Exposition.

Asks Support Of Saturday Poppy Sale

Business houses of Santa Ana and their employees were urged to give fullest cooperation and support to Poppy Day, to be observed here and throughout the nation Saturday, May 25, in a statement issued today by William Spurgeon, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Pondering the patriotic significance of the poppy, Spurgeon asked that the Legion crepe paper be worn generally in all places of business and that every aid be extended to the volunteer workers of the American Legion auxiliary who will distribute the little flowers of remembrance. The statement said:

Makes Statement

"Members of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce always have been among the foremost to answer any civic or patriotic call. During the World War some served with the armed forces while others did their part in services at home. They remember and honor the sacrifices of those who gave up their lives in the nation's defense, of those who were disabled in war service, and those who lost sons, husbands or fathers.

"Therefore, I am calling upon all members to observe Poppy Day, Saturday, May 25, by wearing the crepe paper memorial poppy of the American Legion and the American Legion auxiliary, by encouraging their employees to wear the poppy while on duty, and by extending every courtesy and cooperation to the patriotic women of the American Legion auxiliary who will distribute the flowers. I should like, also, to ask that members and employees contribute as generously as their means will permit to the funds raised for the Legion and auxiliary welfare work through the distribution of the flowers.

"The poppy is the flower of the World War dead. By wearing it we can pay them a personal tribute, and by our contribution in exchange for the poppy we can aid those still suffering from results of the war."

Charles L. Ruby, Fullerton district junior college instructor, was singularly honored yesterday when he received an autographed photograph of Jane Addams, world famous sociologist, who has been seriously ill and died yesterday in Chicago.

Ruby has more than 50 autographed photos of eminent people in his collection to which he is adding regularly. At the present time he is negotiating with Stalin for an autographed photo of the Russian dictator, he told The Register, which recently carried a story on his collections.

County Club President Assists on Woman's Club Program

Mrs. J. H. Tompkins, program chairman for yesterday afternoon's meeting of Santa Ana Woman's club, provided an unusually pleasant entertainment for her sister members when they met in Veterans' hall for one of the final sessions of the year.

For Mrs. Tompkins was privileged to present the new president of Orange County Federation of Women's clubs, Mrs. Archibald Edwards of Fullerton, not in her capacity as federation president, but in that of soloist, and lovely possessor of a rich and melodious voice. And with her mezzo was introduced her accompanist, Mrs. Myrtle Erwin, and Mrs. M. E. Goetting of Santa Ana, whose readings have proven delightful features of several Women's club programs.

Their program followed the business session which Mrs. R. G. Carman, president, opened with the beautiful prayer which Miss Josephine B. Seamon, president of California Federation of Women's Clubs, had written especially for clubwomen. Miss Seamon had offered the prayer at the recent state convention, and personally accorded Mrs. Carman the privilege of using it.

Reports of the recent county convention in Fullerton were given by different members. Mrs. E. M. Waycott gave details of the morning session; Mrs. Earl Ladd described the luncheon interval and its musical program, and Mrs. F. B. Martin summarized the afternoon addresses and business features.

Short reports of local club committees were given by Mrs. Jacob Bohlander and Mrs. J. D. Vaitkus, before Mrs. Waycott, president-elect, outlined program plans for the coming year, naming committee chairmen for the various club dates. This year's work will end with the annual picnic and installation of officers on June 4 in Isaac Walton clubhouse, Fullerton. Mrs. W. M. Wells was named as transportation chairman, and members may telephone her regarding plans for reaching the picnic grounds.

Mrs. E. D. Froeschle announced the dessert bridge party to be held May 24 in the L. A. Turner home, 2628 Greenleaf street, where a Philanthropy section and ways and means committee will be the joint hostess group.

Following her introduction by Mrs. Tompkins, Mrs. Edwards announced her song group as including by request, two of the numbers that had been so well received at the county convention, the Schindler arrangement of the Russian song, "Over the Steppes," and "Modern American Lullaby." As an additional number she sang "In the Silence of the Night" by Rachmaninoff.

Mrs. Goetting prefaced her reading by a short talk on Sir Gilbert Parker's many books and his mastery of character delineation. She chose a dramatic cutting from one of these books, an example of woman's strength of character given in her usual dramatic and forceful style. As an encore number she presented the amusing "Calling George."

Mrs. Carman closed the program with a summary of the state convention in Del Monte from which she so recently returned, telling details of the program, business transactions, and the many courtesies extended visiting clubwomen.

Little Miss Herberta Johnson, wearing a quaint colonial frock of soft blue silk, with lace pantalets and a demure small "pancake" hat, carried her basket of pretty nosegays for the guest artists and the members who have joined the club this year, guests of honor at the tea with which the meeting closed.

Mrs. R. A. McMahon, chairman, and her committee, Mrs. Blanche Hackleton, Mrs. Nannie Myers, Mrs. R. W. Cole and Mrs. H. D. McIlvain, had planned the tea menu served by Mrs. Cole and Mrs. McIlvain from a prettily arranged table. Flowers brightening the entire assembly room were arranged by Mrs. Earl Ladd and her assistants, Mesdames J. Edmund Snow, E. M. Waycott, R. G. Carman, Herbert Johnson and the members of the tea committee.

Study Section
In advance of the general meeting of the Woman's club was the Study section program presented by the leader, Mrs. R. A. McMahon. This opened with election, and section members showed their appreciation for the excellent work done during the past year by Mrs. McMahon and Mrs. J. Edmund Snow, by returning them to the offices of leader and secretary.

"Famous Women" provided the study theme, and interesting character studies were given of Clara Barton by Mrs. D. F. Elwell; Harriet Beecher Stowe by Mrs. C. F. Crose; Jane Addams by Mrs. F. B. Martin; women of Turkey by Mrs. A. G. Green, and Carrie Jacobs Bond by Mrs. McMahon.

Club Year Closes for Mills' Alumnae
Holding their last meeting of the year, members of Mills' College Alumnae association of Orange county were guests last week in the La Habra home of Mrs. M. E. Fowler.

Officers were nominated, and plans were outlined for a new year of activity to begin next fall. Mrs. Mervin Byrte, president, conducted the meeting. Guests from Whittier shared the event with members. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

150 Guests Take Part In Dinner Dance

More than 150 guests attended the dinner dance with which Capistrano Y. L. I. entertained Saturday night in Veterans hall. Dinner was served continuously from 7:30 to 10 o'clock, with dancing enjoyed until midnight. Fred Robinson's Southern Californians provided music.

Tables which lined the ballroom were brightened with many flowers and with pastel candlesticks holding ivory tapers. A special prize was won by G. Malles.

Miss Nellie Colombini, president of the Institute, and Mrs. V. L. Steward, were general chairmen of the event. Other committee heads were Mrs. Katherine Maag, decorations; Miss Mary Louise Dierker, posters; Mrs. U. J. Engelman, tickets; Mrs. U. J. Engelman, prizes.

Proceeds will be used for social welfare work.

Herbert Hill Home Is Setting For Weekend Event

Three couples from Whittier were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hill Friday night when they entertained with a contract bridge party in their home, 1629 West Washington avenue. The occasion marked Mr. Hill's birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kroeger, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Orcutt and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson formed the guest group. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were rewarded for their high bridge score.

Many spring flowers brightened rooms of the home. Tables were spread with white linens at the supper hour, when salad and dessert courses were served.

The Johnsons remained as week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hill and their young son, Herbert Jr. The group spent Saturday night and Sunday at Balboa Beach, returning to the Hill home for dinner Sunday evening. They were joined by the hostess' brother, Paul Hales and Miss Barbara Dunton.

THE MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Dinner

1 small rib steak, pan broiled, or
1 medium sized slice roast lamb
3 tablespoons new green peas
2 small new potatoes in
2 tablespoons butter and parsley sauce

1-2 cup strawberries with powdered saccharin, no cream
Black coffee or clear tea, no sugar
Calory total (lamb)405
Additional Calories for steak about 100

The slice of lamb is averaged for this size: 5 by 5 inches, 1-4 inch thick. Just a mere "wisp" of meat. Don't be misled by the dressing for potato and peas (put them together). The dressing uses a level teaspoonful of butter, melted in 2 tablespoons broth or water, seasoned with salt, pepper and lots of parsley. Turn the vegetables in this hot dressing until well coated.

To convert this menu into the family meal, start the dinner with a cocktail (fruit, crab or tomato juice). Serve larger portions of meat and vegetables, a simple salad, rolls, and choice of drinks. Cream and sugar for the family strawberries, or they may be served as shortcake.

Have you ever done this with leftover fried chicken (or any form of chicken)? Combine with about equal amounts of oysters, cut and sauteed in butter. Put the chicken and oysters into a good cream sauce into ramekins, top with a round of pastry and serve as individual Chicken-Oyster Pie.

REPORTS GIVEN AT SESSION OF DEVIL'S GULCH AT DESIGNED WOMAN'S CLUB

Revealing the most human and amusing happenings of Dick and Betty Collins' honeymoon trip to "Devil's Gulch," tonight broadcast of "The American Family Robinson" from KREG at 8:45 will be replete with interest from beginning to end.

The episode will have as its setting a railroad train enroute to "Devil's Gulch," the name of which means something akin to terror and nausea to Dick Collins. A futile attempt is made to conceal the fact that they are newlyweds, but two, greatly different telegrams find their way to Centerville and Luke Robinson, Betty's father.

In the meantime, Luke Robinson is trying to get Mr. Jason to build his new factory in Centerville, but "Windy" Bill hears of it and tries to buy a piece of property belonging to Miss Timmons with the idea of re-selling it at a handsome profit. Bob Robinson, unfortunately has given "Windy" some information about the property deal, which Luke Robinson does not know.

It was announced that the $500 prize contest for the best letter of not more than 250 words stating the best answer to the question: "What will speed recovery?" will end May 26th and that all letters should be in by that time. Winners will be announced the first part of the month.

Considerable interest has been taken in the contest, it was stated.

THE KNYMIES

Poor Duncy. He was really scared. He shouted, "Hey, look how I've fared, just 'cause I tried to take a ride upon this crazy horse."

"Oh, somebody please make him stop his kicking, ere I take a flop. Please grab him by the head. You'll have to hold the beast by force."

"That's very easy to suggest," said Duncy. "I suppose the rest of us can take the chance of getting kicked. Well, not for me!"

"You hopped on of your own accord. Let's see you try and stay aboard. You claim that you can ride. It should be easy as can be."

Once more the horse reared 'way up high and Duncy shouted, "Me, oh my!! About one more big jump like that and I'll land on the ground."

Then Scouty said, "I guess he's had enough of that. I will be glad to save him from a real hard flop. Come on, tots, gather 'round."

They formed a circle. It worked out as Scouty hoped it would, no doubt. The horse was scared to dash away. It neighed and stood real still.

Then Duncy slid off, satisfied he never should have tried to ride. But, to the rest he said, "Well, anyway, it was a thrill."

By this time night had turned to day. "I think we'd best be on our way. Let's turn the wagon right-side up," one of the gnomes cried out.

They did, and then all hopped aboard. "I'll hitch the horse," woe Windy roared. When this was done, the trip began, amid a husky shout.

"Hey, faster, faster," Windy cried. "Let's put some real pep in this ride. The strange horse seemed to understand. It raced like everything."

Then Dotty yelled, "A runaway! Oh, who is going to save the day?" "I will," replied woe Scouty, "I will stop the crazy thing."

Stating that there were 270 tax expending but not tax fixing functions of government, the speaker suggested the elimination of duplication of the various functions of government controlling one particular thing.

William Schumacher, former supervisor, and a representative of an oil company, advocated a policy of economy. Robert Cawthon, school board member, presented figures for the group.

In an effort for continued economy of policy, application has been made to the government for the 30 per cent of 90 per cent of the total costs of the building program, it was stated. Statements concerning the school auditorium included notice that the present room was built with a seating capacity of 300 when the average daily attendance of the school numbered 49 pupils in 1922. The present average daily attendance is approximately 212 with a registration of 234. Plans as presented by the board include an auditorium with a seating capacity of six hundred.

The proposed bond issue would call for a tax increase of about 18 cents per $100 valuation. The present tax rate is $1.07, the lowest since 1926 and one of the lowest in the county. Numerous instances including the purchase of new school equipment, land, and a school bus were cited over with the constant lowering of the tax rate.

Passage of the bond issue and contemplated reconstruction would provide four reinforced concrete class rooms, six stucco and wood frame class rooms complying with all new school construction laws, and a reinforced concrete auditorium complete with a stage large enough to be used as an extra class room if necessary.

Voting hours are from 9 a. m. until 7 p. m. The election board includes Mrs. Ethelyn La Rue, Mrs. Bessie M. Norland, and Mrs. Lily Carpenter.

FINANCIAL AND MARKET NEWS

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 22.—(UP)—Trading slowed down on the stock exchange today as Wall Street awaited Senate action on the President's budget veto. Prices were irregular with most issues above their lows for the day.

Dealings almost came to a standstill as the financial community listened in on the message. It was heralded as highly conservative and beneficial for the long-range view on the stock market.

Immediately after its content became known prices firmed in all parts of the market. When the veto was resumed, traders anticipated the senate would uphold the veto.

Wall Street was particularly impressed with the President's denunciation of greenback currency. Financial experts agreed with his thesis and opposed the remarks of Senators that the position of the United States was a small-town Germany since America has vast amounts of gold.

They held with the President that a printing of greenbacks would be followed by other and larger issues until the entire currency would be replaced.

Should the Senate uphold the veto the business world would have the basis for a recovery. The opinion of banking experts here. They liked the President's inference that the biggest danger to recovery was the heavy goods industries which would be retarded by greenback currency. Definite recovery in the cash market would absorb many of the unemployed, touch off large bond issues, and generally bring sharp recovery, the experts said.

Despite irregularity in many sections, investment buying went ahead in selected issues and many of them rose to new highs for the year or longer.

Highs for the year were made by Standard of New Jersey, Shell Union Oil, Socony Vacuum, American Petroleum, and others. General Electric, International Harvester, General Electric, and others.

JANE ADDAMS

Jane Addams, once termed by John Burns, British Labor leader, as "The Only Saint in America," a woman who dedicated a whole life to human service, is dead.

Jane Addams, the founder of Hull House in Chicago, was the same through forty years and more. Jane Addams, ready to listen to an individual's troubles; Jane Addams, prepared to do battle with the powers that be to protect her self-adopted charges; Jane Addams, fighting the good fight indomitably, year after year—this is how she will be remembered, for a long, long time.

For nearly half a century Jane Addams presided, a broad-shouldered, capable-fingered mother of a settlement house that "never smelled like an institution." For nearly half a century she directed the work of caring for the sick, comforting the aged, feeding the hungry, teaching the ignorant, cheering the downcast. There, in a great mansion converted into the meeting place of factory workers, she was the heart and soul of a movement that was felt throughout the land.

Hull House came into being in 1889, when Jane Addams, a frail, sensitive young woman of 29 returned from Europe impressed with the misery of working people and determined to do her share toward wiping it out.

She had gone to Europe to recover from an illness and to complete her education. In London she visited Toynbee Hall, the original settlement house of the world.

"We have a great need of that at home," she said to her friend, Ellen Gates Starr, and together the two young women began to fill the need.

Jane Addams came from a family of culture. Born Sept. 6, 1860 in Cedarville, Ohio, the daughter of John and Sarah A. Addams, her father was known as "Dear double-ded Addams" because he was addressed in that manner by Abraham Lincoln. Jane remembered all her life the crepe that hung from the gateposts of the Addams house when the little girl was five. Lincoln had died.

Jane Addams was a pacifist and it was her pacifistic attitude that brought her most criticism. Uncompromisingly did she set herself against war. Her Quaker ancestry may have had something to do with it. Her passionate love for human beings was more at cause. She would have been on Henry Ford's Peace ship, had she not been ill in a hospital at the time he set sail.

In 1917 she made a speech on "Pacifism and Patriotism in Time of War" at a church in Evanston, Ill. When she had finished, Chief Justice O. N. Carter of the Illinois Supreme court rose to denounce her. She took his rebuke calmly, saying that she had only expressed what she believed, and what the world would some day come to believe.

She believed in prohibition, with the zeal of most social workers. She never said she thought prohibition had been perfectly enforced, but she thought a tremendous improvement had taken place since the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"The law is two-thirds enforced," she used to say. "Two-thirds of us don't drink because we can't get the stuff. I'm thankful for that."

And again, "Give prohibition three generations and it will do away entirely with drink."

Prohibition appealed to her for the same reason her settlement work did—and with much the same reactions on the part of others. For when Jane Addams started Hull House it was not a popular project. She was laughed at, and her failure was freely predicted. So it is with all pioneers.

It did not matter that at first she was laughed at. Laughter could not touch Jane Addams.

She carried her calm, fact-finding attitude into her clubwork. In 1924 it stood her in good stead. The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom was meeting in Washington, and militaristic feeling there ran high. The delegates from Europe were hooted, mocked, treated hostilely. Jane Addams as official hostess was humiliated.

It might have been an inexplicable situation, had her memory and good judgment not come to the fore. In her speech of welcome, instead of overlooking the embarrassing situation, she spoke frankly of it. She apologized, and then pointed out that the posters and shouts and newspaper attacks meant very little. Then she said:

"When we were in London in 1915, there were posters on every tree and fence, saying 'To the Tower with Ramsay MacDonald.' It was not until a long time afterward that we learned these were all paid for by Horatio Bottomley, editor of 'John Bull.'"

"This year, as I talk to you, Horatio Bottomley is in jail, and Ramsay MacDonald is Prime Minister of England."

She was honored by being placed on the "blacklist," among the humanity lovers and national doers of this country, along with Harry Emerson Fosdick, Bishop Francis McConnell and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. She was "blacklisted" really for taking a position which meant the putting of humanity above profits, charity above greed and righteousness above wrong.

As history will be written in the future, the records of men and women who served as Jane Addams served, will occupy more pages than will the doings of the alleged "rulers" who are in positions of place, while the Jane Addamses are in the places of power.

The passing of Jane Addams will be mourned but her works and accomplishments will ever live.

THE SIGNIFICANCE AND EFFECT OF THE PRESIDENT'S VETO MESSAGE

Every person should read the veto message which President Roosevelt delivered to both houses of congress today.

There are several reasons why we say this. One is because the President made history by that action. It was the first time in the history of the republic that a President brought his own veto message to congress and there delivered it, in person.

President Wilson inaugurated the custom of presenting a message to congress, in person, on the state of the union, or his annual message, but this is a more extraordinary matter.

Then, again, it is important because it gives the opportunity to the President, who is not a part of the legislative body, to use the influence of his personality and argument upon congress direct, in respect to its prerogatives.

The constitution of the United States contemplated the veto of a bill, largely for the purpose of insuring that the two-thirds should be required before a measure should be adopted that was out of harmony with the administration's ideas.

It was not necessarily contemplated that there should be any more than this requirement, nor on the other hand that he should use his influence in this manner. Be that as it may, it was done and it probably will be continued.

Another reason why this should be read, is because it is informative. It gives the history of the relationship of the government to the enlisted man and analyzes the whole situation.

Whether we agree with the President or not, we will have to agree that it was a clear statement of his position on the matter, and, in the light of the conditions in the country, it was a brave and manly and statesmanlike utterance.

The vote in the house immediately following his message, would indicate that it may not have had great effect. This is indeterminate, for no one knows what the vote might have been had he not spoken.

But, after all, it is not a question of what congress does, it is a question of us all being informed on the matter and standing for the wise and right thing. Believing as the President does, as to the effect of this inflation upon the average man, and particularly upon those whose incomes are fixed, he would be derelict in his duty if he did not express it.

On the other hand, if the senators and congressmen feel that the President is wrong in his premise and his conclusion, they should vote in harmony with their belief and not be influenced by political motives, like patronage and things of that kind.

Unfortunately, it is only by the passage of the Patman bill, and putting it into operation, that we will ever be able to know whether the President was right or wrong. If it is passed, and we find that he was right, we might regret it, but it would have been done. But then we have taken our medicine on many other things, and we probably could stand it again.

NEXT TAX BILLS MAY BE LOWER

Property owners of Orange County will be given another reduction in their property taxes when the next tax bills are made out, unless the state legislature adds an ad valorem tax to the rapidly mounting list of taxes.

The reduction may be as much as 10 per cent. In August of this year, 17 millions of utility property will be added to the county tax rolls. The present assessed valuation of property is 125 millions, on a basis of 37 per cent. The utility property to be added is assessed on a 50 per cent basis. After equalizing the assessed valuation, the saving that is possible, because of the return of this property to the county rolls, is 10 per cent.

People should remember that this reduction in taxes is, in its true sense, not a reduction in taxes at all. It is merely the shifting of a part of the property tax to the backs of all those people who pay the sales tax. Since many of those who pay sales taxes own no property they are the ones who carry the extra burden.

Seal Beach will be most greatly favored of any section of this county owing to the fact that so much utility property is located in that assessment area. Those areas in the county, which have no utility property, or very little in proportion to their assessed valuation, will wonder where their relief is coming from.

Counties, such as Mono and Inyo, with large utility dams and power plants, will find their assessment rolls so greatly increased that property taxes will be more than cut in half. Other counties will get but little relief. This county gets a trifle less than an average share.

Government to Buy Up Marginal Farm Lands

San Bernardino Sun

So widespread is approval of the suggestion for the purchase by the government and retirement of marginal farm lands, there is no immediate prospect of repeal of the process taxes.

It is the idea of Rexford G. Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture in charge of the land-use program, that a billion dollars in public works funds should be used to pay the costs of "penalizing" areas of worked-out and erosion-gutted lands that can no longer be farmed at a profit.

After the public works funds are used it is certain there will be demand for the processing tax money to be used for the same purpose. It is not popular to pay farmers not to raise crops. There are indications it would be popular for the Government to begin buying up land and retiring it from active agricultural uses.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

OLD DOCTOR BARLEYCORN

On learning that the human system always contains a small supply of alcohol.

To temperance I once was addicted;
I was wary of taking too much;
My fluids I always restricted
To sodas and syrups and such.
Afraid of the tide and the totter
Which often lay stout fellows flat,
I drank only pure limpid water
And only a little of that.

From claret and sherry I came to abstain
Because I much feared they would weaken the brain.
I knew that my friends and relations
Were fond of a nip now and then,
And sometimes took husky potatoes
As often as two, three or ten.

But I murmured, "Today or tomorrow
These misguided people will find
To their utter amazement and sorrow
That drinking will weaken the mind.
Through the old cerebellum it eddies and flows,
And kills all one's power of healthful repose."

But now I am told, that our bodies
Although we don't know it, of course,
Are constantly mixing up toddies
To bolster our bodily force.
And that even the Drys, when they're weary,
Escape many buffets and jars
And grow suddenly jovial and cheery
Because of those internal bars.

And also by now you all have found out
That old Doctor John isn't such a bad scout.

PARAGRAPHS

By Robert Quillen

We have no fixed national policy except to look for sleeping dogs and wake them up to see what will happen.

It would be cheaper to give ex-Congressmen a $10,000 pension. Then they couldn't be scared into raiding the Treasury.
Government ownership of railroads: Political ownership of the jobs.

But they won't solve the poor man's problems while they can get his vote merely by soaking the rich.
American standard of living: Spend it while we've got it and depend on the government when it's gone.

A TYPICAL AMERICAN IS A PERSON WHO FEELS ENTITLED TO MORE THAN HE IS WILLING TO DESERVE.

It isn't so hard to quit the smoking habit. The hard part is to quit the habit of giving up the fight.
Ah, well; if the government gets too much silver while trying to help the poor producers, it can give the stuff to the poor.

How astonishing to read that "Man kills wife with butcher knife." Nobody else has a kitchen knife that will cut anything.

AMERICANISM: The State Department trying to keep other nations friendly; Congressional investigating committees exposing State secrets that make other nations hate us.

The mountains hold their own. For every hill-billy who moves out to broadcast an author moves in to get killed. The common belief that it is no longer a crime to make liquor indicates that many people haven't tasted the liquor.
A reformer is one who lives close to a filthy, tuberculous slum and worries about the poor tenant farmer.

Physical courage is the kind you need to face a wrathful man; moral courage the kind you need to face a wrathful woman. Don't blame crop reduction. A drought kills a big crop the same as a little one.

Class hatred is like despising filthy lucre. If you haven't got it and can't get it, your only hope is to hate it.

Thoughts On Modern Life

A CAPITALIST QUESTIONS HIMSELF

Yesterday I listed the six cardinal principles for which capitalism has stood in its philosophy: (1) private property, (2) individual responsibility and achievement, (3) freedom of competition, (4) freedom of contract, (5) equality of opportunity, and (6) the right to make profit.

I stated my complete faith in the soundness of these six principles and said that it is the business of the leadership of capitalism to see to it that capitalism shall, in its actual present day operation, make these rights and principles secure.

We are in the midst of a Red hunt the country over. I yield to no living American my aversion to everything that communism and fascism imply. I believe also that the surest safeguard against communism and fascism is to see to it that capitalism delivers on its six basic promises and principles.

Here are some questions the intelligent capitalist will now be asking himself:

Is there anything that the leadership of capitalistic industrialism can now do on its own initiative to make more secure and to put within the reach of more Americans the right and the opportunity to own property?

Is there anything in prevailing business, industrial, or agricultural practice that is hampering individual initiative, individual responsibility and individual achievement? If so, what moves and measures can the leadership of private enterprise now make or take that will free the individual American more fully for such initiative and achievement?

Is there anything in prevailing business and industrial practice that throttles legitimate competition in excellence of method and management? If so, what can the leadership of private enterprise do to emancipate businesses large and small from these hampering practices?

Is there such a thing as freedom of contract apart from equality of bargaining power? If not, is it not the responsibility of the leadership of private enterprise itself to see to it that freedom of contract is made a reality as well as a traditional phrase? Copyright, 1935, McClure Newspaper-Syn.

DEFENSELESS CHILDREN

A disturbing letter arrived in today's mail. A woman, evidently a teacher, ill trained and illiterate, asks what she shall do with a child of three years who refuses to read her lines before an audience. This child, she goes on to say, has talent, and she wants to train her for public appearance. You know what that means. A moving picture artist, a radio performer, an entertainer at lodge meetings and the like.

"She cries and behaves like a baby. What can I do to make her do her work and stop crying about it? I suspect there is a grain of stubbornness in her makeup," says the teacher. Can you hear the annoyance in her voice? See the set lines on her face as she wrestles with this infant who should be helping her earn money but who cries like a baby instead? God pity all such children for they are defenseless against the pressure of greedy grownups who would devour their infancy and childhood to satisfy their own hunger for money and applause.

The child who is an artist-entertainer does not weep at the thought of making a public appearance. He reaches both hands toward it. He enjoys showing off, enjoys the applause, the excitement and the uplifted position he occupies. His nature thrives and develops on the training he receives. Whether it is good or bad for him I cannot say with authority, but I do know he is happy and healthy and useful to himself and other people.

My concern is not with the happy successful children. It is with the children who loathe the whole business, who shrink from it in dread and horror but who are forced into servitude to earn a living for their owners. I cannot honor the people who treat children like this by calling them parents or teachers.

I know that all children dislike discipline, training and restraint of liberty. The most gifted and willing child has off days when he has to be prodded into action for his soul's sake. But that is not the case with children who cry and shiver and shake at the thought of performing before their classmates.

They are not in the artist class. They are infants who want only to be allowed to live a healthy infant's life, carefree, protected and loved.

Infancy is a brief period at the most. All too soon the delicate bloom of babyhood changes into the sturdier colors of childhood and adolescence. The charm is fleeting. Of course that is why these infants are mistreated by their mistaken and greedy guardians. Now is the accepted time and they know it and push the child with might and main.

Infancy is the period of greatest sensibility, of quick and deep impressions, of rapid and lasting memories. What the child experiences in these brief years lives in his mind and influences his thinking and behavior for the future. Any wrong done an infant is a lasting wrong. There is no excuse and no pardon for the offender.
